Time vs. Daugherty
Wait, You Fat Ones!
Are Courts Worn Out?
The Surprised Caterpillar

By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright, 1920

The New York Times criticizes the Attorney-General, Mr. Daugherty, because he asks Congress to change the statute of limitations and let him, Daugherty, reach out for profiteers that robbed the government in war.

Before long they would all be safe under the statute of limitations, free to spend their stolen money in peace.

The Times objects to the Attorney-General's request for a change in the law. WHY?

If Mr. Daugherty were trying to catch a thief that had stolen a two and a half dollar rug from the Times, the Times would be all for Mr. Daugherty. Why the sympathy for profiteers? They can hire good lawyers. Statutes of limitations are intended to protect the weak against trumped-up evidence later on. Profiteers do not need such statutes, ought not to have them.

Mr. Daugherty is demonstrating what his friends foretold, that he looks upon the people as his clients now and intends to give them his best service.

"Sweep on, you fat and greasy citizen," said Shakespeare. The German authorities say, "Wait a minute, you fattest ones, and pay a tax."

Assuming that the man with a big waist is more prosperous and less useful than his thinner brother, the German finance ministry proposes to tax every inch beyond an average waist measure. There couldn't be a wiser tax. Except in certain sad cases of uncontrollable metabolism, whatever goes on the waistband comes, figuratively speaking, from the forehead. Cut down the waist, you build up the mind.

The old Gauls knew it. They took a young man in his prime, fastened a metal ring around his waist, sing said:

"Grow fat at your peril! That ring won't come off."

In New Jersey, masked men calling themselves "Ku Klux," fastened a man behind an automobile and dragged him along the road. He had beaten his wife; will probably lose one eye.

In Maine, veterans of the war marching in a funeral procession with the national flag, saw a man in a street car with his hat on. Annoyed, they broke ranks, entered the car and "beat the man up."

In all this, perhaps, human nature yields to noble impulses. But how far should it go? Will the man who eats with his knife, or uses a toothpick in public, suddenly find himself lying unconscious on the floor?

In France everybody raises his hat for every funeral, but if one absent-mindedly forgets, he is not beaten.

Would it not be better to let the court settle those matters?

Lenin of Russia is amazed at change in Bolshevist policy made necessary by simple human nature. Leaders that were driven out are called back. Money that was despised is earnestly borrowed. Superior intelligence, deemed unnecessary, unworthy of superior pay, now seems necessary and can name its price.

The caterpillar, suddenly a butterfly, is not more surprised than Mr. Lenin will be, if he lives twenty years, to see what happens in Russia. A caterpillar might say: "I want to remain a proletarian caterpillar and crawl on the ground. No butterfly life for me." Nevertheless, he becomes a butterfly when his time comes.

That's how it is arranged.

The caterpillar doesn't arrange it, and human beings don't arrange their system. It is arranged for them, all locked up inside the first cave man that had brains enough to fashion a sharp flint at the end of a stick and thus get the tiger's hide.

If the dead could return—for instance the original Astor—what surprises would appear.

Lady Astor, a Virginia girl, member of England's Parliament, might say to the Astor family, into which she married:

"My people were owners of slaves, when the Astors were skinning skunks. Decide for yourself which is the better ancestry."

Lady Astor's ancestors-in-law were engaged in the fur business. Energy and foresight in the old Astor established the great Hudson's Bay Fur Company. Today the directors of that company are interested, not in skinning skunks or blue foxes, but in oil that lies below the ground bought by them in Canada for trapping purposes.

A few good spouting wells would make the fur business and even Astor real estate, seem small. Own part of the earth if you can. There is no knowing what may be in it.

Mile. Gade, a young woman of twenty-two, champion swimmer of Denmark, finished yesterday a swim of 143 miles, including detours, all the way from Albany to New York, averaging three and a half miles an hour where the water was fresh, three and a half where salt water and tide made swimming easier. The actual swimming time was 63 hours, 38 minutes.

A fast boat could do it in three hours, a flying machine in one hour. A telegraph message could do it 1,240 times in one second. This feat is important because it proves what marvelous energy nature has locked up in the body of a woman, upon whose inexhaustible vitality depend the human race and its future.

More Resignations From Guard

FORTY-ONE OFFICERS QUIT

40 Ignore Governor and Notify Sherburne, Who Urges Reconsideration

Forty-one additional officers of the Massachusetts Field Artillery, including Captain Harry Rice, today followed the examples set by Brigadier-General John H. Sherburne and Major John Simpkins and tendered their resignations from the State service.

In order to emphasize their attitude in the quarrel between General Sherburne and officials of Adjutant General Steven's department, backed by Governor Cox, 40 of the resigning officers sent their resignations direct to General Sherburne, ignoring Governor Cox, the commander-in-chief of the State military forces.

General Sherburne immediately returned the resignations to the officers with letters requesting them to reconsider their action.

In his communication General Sherburne pointed out that "your loyalty to me is appreciated, but your first duty is to your State and not to any individual."

With hardly an exception the men who have resigned are among the leaders in the reorganization of the Field Artillery Brigade, and most of them are veterans of the World War, with overseas service. They are intensely indignant over what they declare is outrageous treatment of their former chief, General Sherburne, whose resignation has been accepted by Governor Cox.

All of them take exception to the report that is being circulated by the men whom General Sherburne had called his "enemies" to the effect that he has attempted to build the artillery unit to a size not warranted under existing conditions "in order to hold his rank."

HALE MAY SUCCEED SHERBURNE.

The name of Colonel Richard K. Hale, commissioner of the State Department of Public Works is being mentioned as the probable successor to General Sherburne, as commander of the Brigade.

Hale has a splendid record as an artillery officer, having served with the State militia on the Mexican border and with the 101st Artillery overseas, where he underwent a special course in artillery training at one of the celebrated French schools, and later served with the British forces in Flanders. He returned home as chief of staff of the 26th Division.

General Sherburne has asked that it be made plain that he was actuated by no spirit of animus and that his resignation was solely due to the failure of the administration of the State to keep faith with the city of Worcester.

The action of Major Simpkins, who by the way, was one of three brothers who served with distinction in the Yankee Division, followed that of his chief as a matter of course.

Aside from those two, however, there have been a number of officers, some of high rank, who have withdrawn from the Guard, largely because of what they term the highhanded action of the Adjutant-General's Department, headed by Josse F. Stevens, chief of staff.

It is expected that other resignations will follow, and the consensus of opinion seems to be that the present administration of the Guard should be junked.

The chief grievance on the part of the officers who, for obvious reasons, do not wish their names to be used, is that the Guard was reorganized with

Officers Who Served Overseas Called 'Fatheads'

By HARRY A. BENWELL
Author of "History of the Yankee Division."

What is wrong with the National Guard of Massachusetts?

"Too much adjutant-general," say the overseas officers.

"Too much 'fatheadedness' on the part of overseas officers," says the adjutant-general's department.

"The guard is thriving, despite the 'cockiness' of overseas officers, and their refusal to take hold," the adjutant-general's department replies.

"Speak of the late war and the adjutant-general's department thinks of the Boston police strike. That was their magnum opus," the veterans charge.

"All the overseas officers want to be generals," is the counter of the adjutant-general's department.

And so the wrangling goes on while the general public, which foots the bills, is dazedly wondering what is happening.

GEMS AND CASH STOLEN FROM MEDFORD HOME

When Wallace W. Benjamin and family returned to their residence at No. 102 Mystic street, Medford, today, from a few days' outing, they learned that a thief had entered during their absence and removed $300 worth of jewelry and $400 in cash. Mrs. Benjamin's bedroom was in disorder. An open window told the story of how the thief entered.

GIRL SEEKS DEATH BY POISON

Army Captain Sought as 23-Year-Old Julia Murphy Battles for Life at City Hospital

A love spat with her army captain lover.

This is what led pretty Julia Murphy, 23 years old, to court death through the agonies of a slow poison, is the belief of relatives and friends today.

And, while police and friends were trying to solve the love tangle lying behind the tragic attempt of the girl to end her life, physicians at the City Hospital were battling to save the girl as she writhed on her cot, torn by the tortures of the slowly eating poison she had elected to take in her moment of despair.

Physicians say there is no hope for her recovery. Her death may come tonight, or it may not come for three weeks, but she is doomed.

Her sister, Miss Alice Murphy of Arlington, a telephone operator at the hospital, declared that the dying girl has indignantly denied the rumors of a lovers' quarrel with a resulting attempt at suicide.

"I took the poison by mistake," Miss Murphy declares her sister told her. "I had gotten out of bed to take some headache powders and I got the wrong bottle. I have had absolutely no trouble and had no desire whatever to take my own life."

Physicians at the hospital, however, are inclined to doubt her statement, pointing out that she swallowed seven tablets of the deadly grains.

Miss Murphy made her home in a Queensberry street apartment with two girl friends. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Murphy, who have been summering on the cape, are speeding to Boston.

Miss Murphy retired apparently in good spirits last night, bidding her roommates good night and closing her bedroom door behind her.

A few minutes later, groans were heard from her locked room, and as the lock was forced, Julia was found tossing and moaning on her bed, while by her side lay a phial of tablets.

Rushed to the City Hospital, as her sisters, frantic with fright, had appealed for aid, a battle to save her began.

And meanwhile the army captain, who is said to be attached to the army base at South Boston, is being sought.

Report That De Valera May Not Appear at Parley

Dublin, Sept. 9 (By the Associated Press).—A rumor was current in Sinn Fein circles here today that if plenipotentiaries were appointed to proceed to Inverness to confer with the committee of the British Cabinet named to deal with the Irish question, Eamon de Valera, the Republican leader, did not desire to be one of them, being willing to leave the conduct of negotiations with Arthur Griffith, the Sinn Fein Foreign Minister.

In any case, Mr. Griffith will be the chief figure in the negotiations, once actual business is approached.

ASSASSIN IN W. ROXBURY TRAGEDY SEIZED

Slayer Plotted Murder After Wife Had Obtained Divorce for Cruelty

Brandishing a crepe-draped revolver, around the barrel of which he had forced his gold wedding ring, Charles Antoine Wells of No. 184 Curve street, Dedham, today murdered his divorced wife, Eleanor Anna Wells, and her attorney, A. Louis Altmeyer of No. 53 State street, in a crowded street car at Grove and Washington streets, West Roxbury.

With the first flash of the revolver, G. G. Gillard of Dedham, who was in the rear of the car, sprang upon the murderer, who was mad trembling, made to effect escape. And as O'Neil, operator of the car, dashed for aid, he kept his grip on the man until officer Finnie of the West Roxbury police arrived.

Gillard, attached to the New England Telephone Company, it is said, lives in Boston.

Granted a decree on February 17 of this year, which became absolute on August 7, Mrs. Wells had been given custody of the three children, Eileen E., fifteen years old; Charlotte, fourteen years, and William, six. Her husband had also been ordered to pay her $12 a week.

And it was over the terms of this decree that the tragedy occurred. Failure of Wells to live up to the order of the court caused Mrs. Wells, with her attorney, to start for Dedham, to apply to court there in order to compel her husband to give up the children and to pay her alimony.

Mrs. Wells had also started proceedings in the Dedham courts. It was learned later today, to dispossess her husband from the house where he lived and which she bought two years ago for $8,000.

Patriotic to the extreme, was the scene at the Dedham Emergency Hospital, as Bernard Ellen M. Wells was laid to rest where he lay the pools of the woman who had sacrificed her life to wrest her from her father's grip for the sake of her mother's love and care.

"It's useless for girl cried in a shrill shriek, and as fell in a state of collapse over the body.

Gently she was carried away from the

DEDHAM MAN KILLS DIVORCED WIFE AND LAWYER ON STREET CAR

SLAYER, BRANDISHING CREPE-DRAPED GUN, THROWS TROLLEY PASSENGERS INTO PANIC

brome, while sympathetic nurses tried to quiet her.

Despondent at ever forcing her husband to give up the children and pay her her alimony, Mrs. Wells decided at last to resort to the court, and, as she stopped about 9 o'clock at the little fruit store of Alex Marinakis, No. 8266 Washington street, to wait for her car and buy a little fruit for lunch while she waited for action by the court, she unfolded her hopes and fears.

She boarded the car and a moment later Marinakis was startled to hear a fusillade of shots, and to see women and men struggling to escape from the car a block down the street.

From passengers in the car, a vivid description of the tragedy was obtained.

RENTED ON GIRL'S SHOULDER.

The car had hardly gotten under way before Wells, who was sitting on the other side of the car, was seen to produce a revolver. Around the muzzle gleamed the pure gold of the wedding band, and about this was draped a piece of crepe.

Resting it on the shoulder of a girl in the seat in front of him, while the passengers gasped in horror, the man rained five shots in rapid succession at his wife and her lawyer, who sat beside her, across the aisle.

As the gun barked in staccato-like rapidity, the woman across the way crumpled up in her seat, while a crimson stream trickled from the gaping wounds in her head. A moment later, the man by her side fell sideways to the floor, two bullets in his head, while the fifth shot crashed through the window by their side.

Women shrieked and the operator of the car, John O'Neil, releasing the doors, raced up the street shouting for police.

PLOTTED THE KILLING.

With the first crash of the revolver, Tutty, the Dedham policeman, leaped from his seat in the rear, but he was too late. As the limp bodies sank to the floor, he leaped upon the slayer and, gaining a strangle hold, held him powerless on the floor of the car until West Roxbury policemen, aroused by the shouts of the car operator, dashed into the car.

A passing automobile, driven by N. J. Given, of No. 11 Beach avenue, Swampscott, was requisitioned, and the limp form of Mrs. Wells placed gently across the rear seat. The wild race, however, to the Dedham Emergency Hospital was in vain, for doctors pronounced death instantaneous. Altimeyer, rushed by ambulance to the City Hospital, also was dead on arrival.

In his cell at the West Roxbury police station, Wells, in callous sang froid, related without any apparent trace of nervousness the incidents that led up to the slaying, how his wife had severed him on grounds of cruel and abusive treatment, how he had wanted to keep the children, and at last, driven to desperation by her threatened action for a court order, had decided to kill her, and had plotted the details of what developed into the most tragic and sensational murder that has shocked Greater Boston for years.

Going to his wife's home at No. 7 Common street, Boston, he had found, according to the story police gleaned, that their furniture was to be removed and that there was no hope for a reconciliation.

Wells, according to police, admitted that he had bought the revolver at a Washington street store for the express purpose of killing his wife.

WIDOW TOLD OF TRAGEDY.

As the news of her husband's death was broken to her over the telephone from his Boston office, Mrs. Altimeyer, at her pretty little home at No. 47 Shore Drive, Winthrop, verged on nervous collapse. She quickly composed herself, however, and set about making plans for receiving the body and for breaking the news to her twelve-year-old daughter, Phyllis, for whom their cottage is named.

Mr. Altimeyer was a graduate of Boston University and was affiliated with many fraternal organizations, including the Masons, Elks, Boston Commandery and the Mystic Shrine. He was born in Nancy, France.

That Mrs. Wells was in mortal fear of her husband, was the testimony of Mrs. Wyman, with whom Mrs. Wells had lived at No. 23 Common street. Wells was insanely jealous of his wife, Mrs. Wyman declared.

Mrs. Wells, it became known today, had been employed as a waitress in several downtown restaurants, including the South Station lunch and Childs', as well as at the Boston City Club. She had only recently returned from New Hampshire.

SERVED SIX MONTHS.

That Wells had figured in the annals of the police court before and that he had served a jail sentence was revealed today. According to the records of the court, he was arrested October 17, 1919, accused of assault with a baseball bat on Stephen Kileenan, a paperhanger.

Insanely jealous of his wife, Wells hid in their home when she supposed him out. As Kileanan entered to do some repair work, his wife engaged him in conversation, the subject of which centred mostly about Wells himself.

Springing from cover, Wells attacked the paperhanger, the attack bringing about his arrest. He was sentenced to four months, appealed, and was then sentenced to six months.

Wells also figured in court on October 15, 1919, when his wife charged him with assault and battery. This cost him a fine of $15, which he paid.

WIFE'S PICTURE CASHED.

Mute evidence of Wells' intense rage against his wife was found at his home after the tragedy when, from a bureau drawer, was taken a picture of Mrs. Wells, a gash slashed out over the heart and the eyes punched out, and under it this inscription:

"Beware of this bad woman. She has no eyes and lose heart."

And, while the grim hunt for evidence to show the murder intent of their father went on about them, the three little ones, left motherless by their father's bullets, told a pathetic story of their life for the past few weeks.

And as they fell eagerly on the food that had been brought in by a kindly neighbor, Mrs. Louise Clougherty, of No. 2376 Washington street, they told of how they had been subsisting on bread and water and blueberries that they had picked in the fields about the house.

Later in the day, State authorities arrived at the house to take them in charge.

SINN FEIN NOW SEES HOPE OF PEACE

Arthur Griffith May Be Spokesman for Sinn Fein at Peace Parley

Manston House this morning and was not expected until the afternoon, but Mr. Griffith and Charles Burgess, Sinn Fein Minister of Defence, were early on the scene. It was stated that no special meeting of the Sinn Fein Cabinet had been summoned to consider Premier Lloyd George's reply, but as the Cabinet numbered only six members who see each other daily, no particular significance is seen in this.

Desmond Fitzgerald, Sinn Fein Minister of Propaganda, said today he expected no unnecessary delay in the reply to Lloyd George, and that Robert C. Barton, the Sinn Fein courier, was in readiness to return to Inverness at any moment.

Sinn Fein Leaders See Peace Ahead

By International News Service.

Dublin, Sept. 9.—Ireland believes that peace now lies ahead. Sinn Fein leaders today expressed satisfaction over the action of the British Cabinet in withdrawing all the previous limitations for a peace conference and making the single condition that Ireland remain within the empire.

The opinion exists in some quarters, however, that Premier Lloyd George may be making a play to split the Irish ranks upon the acceptance of dominion status for Ireland.

Certain leaders said they believed that the English premier was gambling upon causing a break-away by the Irish Republican army.

"But we are so disciplined that there is no fear of that," said one leader to the International News Service. "We are united and all stand behind De Valera. You can tell the American people that we are firm and we ask our friends in the United States to keep a united front.

"We shall not let England break us. All is going to come out all right. Many times the Irish cause has been ruined by a break, but this time no matter what attitude De Valera takes he will have the support of us all."

By Associated Press.

London, Sept. 9.—Sinn Fein Ireland is called upon to state whether its demands upon the British government contemplate separation from Great Britain, according to the view of newspapers here. The text of the reply of the British Cabinet to Eamon De Valera's latest note, made public last night, was considered as a demand for a definite reply from the Irish Republican leader, and a plain declaration that the writing of notes between Dublin and London cannot be continued.

It was believed that Premier Lloyd George had smoothed the way for an acceptance by De Valera and his colleagues of the invitation to confer with members of the British government at Inverness on September 20.

The text f the Cabinet's reply to De Valera was prominently displayed in the papers here today, and the opinion was generally expressed that the government had gone as far as possible. There was considerable speculation as to the nature or Mr. De Valera's reply to the note.

"It is impossible to say," said the Daily News, "that the present note asks anything whatever of Ireland that is not freely conceded by Australia, Canada and the ruling majority or South Africa. This may not be the basis for an agreement, but it appears monstrous to say it is not the basis for a discussion."

Costa Rican Troops March In, Watched by U.S. Marines

By Associated Press.

Punta Arenas, Costa Rica, Sept. 9.—Occupation of the Coto region by Costa Rican troops, in pursuance of a declaration from Secretary of State Hughes upholding the region's award to Costa Rica by former Chief Justice White, was carried out without intervention by the American battleship Pennsylvania, sent from Philadelphia on August 23 with 400 marines, in case of resistance on the part of Panama.

Inhabitants joyfully greeted the Costa Rican troops, who arrived to effect the occupation on September 5. The troops found long lines of deserted trenches and the ruins of many public buildings which had been burned by the Panamans before evacuating the area.

SEVEN WOUNDED IN NEW YORK RUM BATTLE

Dry Agent Commits Suicide After Sensational Raid on Greek Ship

By International News Service.

New York, Sept. 9.—Two Greek sailors found wounded and moaning in their bunks aboard the Greek steamer King Alexander today brought the total wounded to seven after a boarding party of prohibition agents stormed the ship early in the morning.

One of the men, Anthony Patternios, was fatally injured.

A body believed to be that of one of the prohibition raiding party, was found floating in the harbor near the scene of the fight.

Prohibition Director Frank J. Fitzpatrick, following the raid, shot and killed himself in the washroom of a ferry house on the shore near the ship's moorage, police reported.

According to their story, other prohibition agents were standing near Fitzpatrick when he shot himself. It is not known whether he shot any of the crew who were wounded in the fight.

As a result of the ship's storming, which comes close upon the heels of the capture by prohibition agents of nearly a million dollars' worth of high-grade whiskey on the waterfront, the local prohibition office has $125,000 worth of cocaine and liquor seized aboard the ship.

All of the wounded men are now in hospitals, closely guarded. In addition, eight unwounded sailors, who participated in the battle aboard the ship, are held for violation of the Volstead Act.

The capture of the ship was made only after a bitter battle between the raiders and the crew. As an engagement had been made by two prohibition agents and the sailors by which a portion of the drugs and whiskey were to be bought by the agents for $14,000.

WOMAN IN $20,000 HEART SUIT KEPT WEDDING RING 35 YEARS

WAITED IN VAIN TO MARRY

Danvers, Sept. 9.—A gold wedding ring that she kept for thirty-five years in the expectation of using it when she would become the wife of Augustus F. Mead, will figure prominently in the $20,000 breach of promise suit filed by sixty-two-year-old Miss Mary F. Gallivan of this town against Mrs. Mary E. Rowell, administratrix of Mead's estate.

Another important exhibit in the case will be a marriage license taken out here thirty-five years ago but never used. Both wedding ring and marriage license are now locked in a safety deposit box.

In addition to suing Mead's estate for breach of promise to marry, Miss Gallivan asks for payment of a promissory note which she maintains her alleged fiance made in her favor during an illness nine years ago.

CLAIMS HE GAVE NOTE.

She claims he gave the note to her as satisfaction of his alleged promise to wed but paid only $150 of the amount. Mead died last December, at the age of sixty-two years, leaving an estate of $46,000, most of which was in cash. His sister, Mrs. Rowell, who kept house for him in a fine colonial residence at No. 15 River street, Danvers port, was made administratrix of the estate.

Friends of Miss Gallivan say that her heart affair with Mead went so far that they not only took out a marriage license and bought a wedding ring, which she has cherished for the past thirty-five years, but they also consulted a clergyman and made the necessary arrangements for the marriage ceremony.

The friends of Miss Gallivan also say that as the date for the marriage ceremony approached, Mead began a celebration in advance of the event, with the result that he was not on hand at the appointed time.

PREVIOUS SUIT DROPPED.

It is said that a reconciliation was effected and other wedding dates set, with similar results. She brought a breach of promise suit against him two years after the alleged original date for the wedding ceremony, but it was dismissed without prejudice after the couple became friendly again.

Miss Gallivan, who lives with her brother in a modest little cottage at No. 19 Mill street, Danvers port, diagonally across the street from where Mead lived, declined to discuss the case.

Wool Man's Wife, Whose $5,000 Gems Were Stolen From Auto

MRS. ALFRED AKEROYD

Pawnshops and other possible places of disposal are being combed today for traces of $5,000 worth of jewels stolen from the automobile belonging to Mrs. Alfred Akeroyd, wife of a prominent Summer street wool merchant.

The gems were left in the car, together with a number of traveling bags, while Mr. and Mrs. Akeroyd and their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Akeroyd, stopped to do some shopping at a store at Boylston and Arlington streets.

When they returned after being absent but a few moments, they found that the leather bag containing the jewels had disappeared. Other things in the car were untouched.

The Akeroyds had been visiting at Mrs. Akeroyd's home when the robbery took place.

The police were immediately notified of the loss, but could get no clue to the thief.

BOY ARRESTED AFTER STABBING IN PARK

John Garfinkle, eighteen years of age, of No. 1 Bower park, Roxbury, was treated at the City Hospital for a stab wound in the left arm, received, he says, while sitting on the grass in Washington Park, Roxbury. Willis Coughlin, seventeen years old, was later arrested in connection with the assault.

ONLY 'HONEYED EPISTLES' FOR PAULINE

Miss Frederick, Famous Film Star, Says She Has Neither Bonds Nor Money Now

Los Angeles, Sept. 9.—Answering the suit for $26,000 filed against her for legal services by George Edwin Joseph, prominent New York attorney, Pauline Frederick, motion picture celebrity and former wife of Willard Mack, declares that honeyed words veneered the business transactions of Attorney Joseph, and that she gave him $10,000 with which to buy her Liberty Bonds, with the net result that she has neither the bonds nor the $10,000.

An alleged unfiled contract, to which Miss Frederick and the Robertson-Cole Motion Picture Company were parties, is the basis of the litigation. Miss Frederick's action was filed here by Attorney Arthur Weigall.

In her response the film star alleges among other interesting things the following:

I—That Attorney Joseph collected $6,847.74 for her in connection with the sale of eastern properties and failed to remit it.

2—That he, with numerous "lengthy and endearing telegrams, while away from Los Angeles, and personally while in the city, complained that suit and attention upon her," and later included the most of the telegrams in a itemized bill of fees and expenses.

3—That while he pretended to represent her in negotiating a contract with the Robertson Cole Company, he at the same time was being paid by the motion picture company to negotiate a contract with her.

Attorney Joseph is said to be married.

Here are a few of the "endearing telegrams":

From Winslow, Ariz.:

"Pauline, thou loved and lovely queen of all the land of movie fame, thou gracious, radiant smile illuminates every weary mile. —George."

From Barstow came one reading:

"Edgar swears he will not make up until I get some topic of conversation.—George."

The following from New York, September 9, 1919:

"So disappointed at not being able to hear someone's wonderful voice.—George."

Congressman Herrick "Too Perfect" to Wed, Says Quincy Beauty

He's Too Good to Be True—Why Worry a Man of Weak Tea Virtues?

The trouble with you, Manuel, is that you are too perfect. A woman dreads a perfect man. He seems either too good to be true or too sick to be living.

If that "stainless soul and body" stuff you write about yourself be true, Manuel, as a husband you would turn out to be about as thrilling as a slice of baked rice pudding.

It's the man with the deep, dark, romantic, singing past who interests Boston women. Some others need apply.—Miss Kathleen Meroth of Quincy to Congressman Manuel Herrick of Washington and Oklahoma.

By HAZEL CANNING

Manuel Herrick, congressman from Oklahoma, originator of the famous beauty contest, has at last received his first proposal from a Massachusetts girl.

The fair aspirant in the now country-famous beauty contest is Miss Kathleen Meroth, Quincy.

A little while ago the eccentric congressman, Herrick complained that he had received letters from girls everywhere, but none from Massachusetts.

"I don't know what's the matter with Massachusetts," said he.

"I'll tell you," wrote Miss Meroth to Manuel, "you are too perfect. Any woman dreads a perfect man. This is especially true of my State. Besides—a perfect man seems either too good to be true or too sick to be living. Honest, Manuel, are you serious about that 'stainless' stuff?"

So writes Miss Meroth.

The nation, of course, everywhere by now has heard how Congressman Herrick of Oklahoma started a beauty contest in Washington, asking girls everywhere to send in their pictures. The grand prize was not to be, in this contest, a starship in the movies or a Ford car. It was to be nothing less than the Congressman himself, his "stainless" soul and his maybe mortgaged farm out in Oklahoma. Miss Meroth's letter is the first one Herrick has received from Massachusetts. Here it is:

THAT STAINLESS PAST.

'Mr. Herrick:

"My Dear Sir—I take my pen in hand to let you know why you are going so slow with girls in Massachusetts. You only need, in our eyes, is that you are too good to be true. We don't feel worthy, Mr. Herrick, of all that rectitude of yours. Our aloofness, therefore, is not cool indifference, but New Englandish humility. It's you, the grand prize at the end, with your stainless past and similar charms, which gives us pause to think. This letter, therefore, while not an out-and-out proposal, is, nevertheless, an entering wedge.

"I want no weak tea virtues, of a sheepish King Arthur, in any husband I would marry. Why, Manuel, don't you remember what happened to that poor gentleman? His wife left him for Launcelot, who was NOT SLOW AT THAT. Which always happens to a husband when he is too darn good. So, Manuel, if you hope to succeed with me, you've got to grow a vice or two, and learn how to smoke tobacco. Step lively! Stain that unstained soul of yours! Develop an interesting sin. Become the man with the deep, dark, mysterious romantic past. That's the only man who interests Boston women. For he is stimulating to the imagination. All others have no chance with me. Comprenes-vous, Monsieur Herrick? I pause for a reply.

Truly,

KATHLEEN MEROTH.

So writes Miss Meroth, in deep sincerity. In the life, however, and face to face, she amplifies her proposal. For she has drawn certain conclusions of her own, sub rosa, to speak. Which run in this wise:

"In all your letters to aspirants, Manuel, you describe yourself as '75 per cent. perfect in face and 90 per cent. perfect in all other points of pulchritude.' You go on to remark that your 'love is that of a whole souled scion of a wealthy family against whose body and whose soul there is no 'marol' stain.'

MUST HAVE A ROAR.

"Manuel—go easy! Manuel—watch your step! Cah this really be true, Manuel, my dear boy, these stories that you tell on ourself? Honest, such utter blamelessness makes me shiver. A kiss from such an amateur as ou, Manuel, must be about as peppy as a piece of bread and molasses. If you're a man without a sting, Manuel—and about as thrilling as a baked rice pudding. Oh, do write me that you have been slandering yourself.

"Now let me tell you what I require in a husband. First of all, he must be a man with a roar. I would rather my husband came home every morning at 4 a. m., with the other woman's perfume redolent on his coat sleeve than to be a lily livered Sir Galahad of 1921, chasing round after an old cup that didn't even hold a little near-beer, once he had found it.

"But, really, my dear, between friends. I'm just dreadfully afraid that Mr. Herrick is a stingy man. 'Close as the bark to a tree,' we say in these parts. That incident of the twenty-five-cent piece makes me uneasy. Don't you remember how the two ladies were into his office, all intent on competing for the prize? But when The Prize saw them, he bade them depart, and gave them twenty-five cents between them to go buy ice cream, like dear, good girls.

"Now, I leave it to anybody—how much ice cream can you buy for two healthy women with one lone quarter of a dollar? Such careful expenditure of a dollar?

"Whereas the man who has swerved from the straight and narrow path has generally grown broad in the side stepping. And certainly has spent more than a quarter. Particularly, if he has done it in style. Then, of course, before I come to final terms with Mr. Herrick, he will absolutely have to explain his exact financial status. The matter of that farm, back in Oklahoma, is a trifle hazy."

OH, FOR A MAN WITH A PAST!

Miss Kathleen Meroth, who makes first Massachusetts proposal of marriage to Congressman Herrick in his now famous beauty contest. It is a genuine proposal on her part but she insists that a real perfect man is a puzzle (photo by Waid Studio).

43 OFFICERS RESIGN FROM STATE GUARD

the wartime unit designations instead of the old militia names.

Peculiarly enough the overseas officers were most insistent that the Eighth, Ninth, Fifth, Sixth, Second and other old-time militia designations should be perpetuated. They declared that these regiments were possessed of histories extending back for more than 100 years in some cases.

The officers declared, however, that they were given no opportunity to offer suggestions. They asserted that men of high rank, who had devoted years to the service, militia, national guard and overseas, were not called into consultation.

One remarked: "Overseas officers are regarded in the adjutant general's office as interlopers. You speak of the 'late war' up there, and they immediately think of the Boston police strike. That was their magnum opus."

The administration went ahead with its program, after several false starts, and for some time the success of the plan appeared dubious. To some of the officers, accustomed in France to handling big organizations and masses of men, the backing and filling and what they called playing of politics, proved to be particularly irksome.

PROMISES NOT KEPT.

Promises were not kept, and recruiting was hard, due largely to the natural reluctance of service men to again "take on," coupled with the fact that there were no "objectives."

It was originally planned to have three regiments of field artillery in a brigade, in conformity with the War Department reorganization. Later the local administration decided to dispense with one of these regiments, which brought a protest from General Shefburne.

The charge made in certain circles that General Sherburne wanted the extra regiment in order to obtain promotion is absolutely absurd to those familiar with military matters and with the man himself. He is considered the highest authority on field artillery in this State.

WHY SHERBURNE QUIT.

When he reorganized the field artillery of the State he was promised by Governor Coolidge's administration that Worcester, which has maintained artillery units for sixty years, should retain them. The State failed to keep the pledge, assigning infantry instead, and General Sherburne, to maintain his self-respect, stepped out. His chief of staff, Major Simpkins, as is customary in such cases, followed suit.

BLACKMAIL GIRL WAS PAL OF RING LAWYER

Paid Eleanor Barnes Weekly Salary and Entertained Her in Wife's Absence

New facts in connection with the Boston blackmailing ring were revealed when it was learned that Eleanor Barnes, one of the two women who staged the famous "birthday party" at which Albert Victor Searles, millionaire artist, was trapped and mulcted of $50,000, has been a companion of one of the alleged ring members for more than a year.

This man is a Boston attorney who is married and has several children. For more than a year he has been paying the Barnes woman a regular weekly "salary," ranging from $20 to $50, and has at times entertained her royally in his home in Boston and at his summer home—during the absence of his wife.

It was also learned that the same attorney went to New York several times while the Barnes woman was on trial there in connection with a larceny case, and that he paid her bills for counsel.

After the Barnes woman was placed in a jail in New York, the same attorney visited her several times and provided her with comforts during her stay there. More than a mere business interest is said to have been shown the woman by the attorney.

SNARED PRIZE FIGHTER.

Another new development disclosed in the investigation is that the Barnes woman had a well-known New York prize fighter in her meshes. It is believed that it is the prize fighter who is now in Boston searching for the woman, claiming that he married her and that she ran away with his jewelry and money.

For some time after her release from the New York jail she received a regular weekly allowance from the fighter. When she returned to Boston she wore new jewelry and had plenty of money. To intimate friends the Barnes woman said she was married to the fighter, while to other friends she said that the pugilist wanted to wed her, but that she had not yet decided and meanwhile was "getting all I can from him."

KNOWN AS MARION SAUNDERS.

She was known in New York under the name of Marion Saunders, it is said, and it was only after that that she is said to have entangled the prize fighter in her web.

Unemployment other than the work she is said to have been doing for the blackmail ring. Just prior to her first activities with the ring she told friends that she was "doing a little shadowing." She explained that she was shadowing a Brookline married woman in the interest of the woman's husband who wanted a divorce.

WOMAN BATTLES TWO ATTACKERS IN LYNN

Mrs. Frieda Larson Held Up Near Cemetery After Ride in Automobile

Police of Lynn today are searching for the two men who attacked Mrs. Frieda Larson while she was on her way from a camp in Lynnfield to her home in Lynn.

According to the story told by the woman, who was found by police officers near St. Mary's Cemetery at Sluice Pond, Lynn, with her clothing almost torn from her and her face and throat scratched and bruised, she was assaulted by two men in an auto mobile.

She said she was walking to Nut tings Lake, Illierica, where she has been living, and on the road the machine bearing the two men drew alongside her.

One of the men is alleged to have climbed out and asked Mrs. Larson if she would ride with them. She at first refused, but as it was growing late and she was in a hurry to get home she finally consented, she says.

As the car reached the edge of the cemetery she says one of the men placed his hand over her mouth and the other stopped the machine. Both seized her and dragged her out into the road, she said.

At first the shock and surprise of the attack dazed her, according to her story to the police, but when she felt her feet on the ground she began fighting.

She declares she knocked one of her assailants to the road with a blow and that she kicked the other so hard that he dropped.

She started to run, but the men recovered and chased her, one of them seizing her about the waist and dragging her down. It was in this part of the struggle that her clothing was torn.

Meantime her screams had been heard by two policemen who came up on the run. The assailants ran back to their machine, jumped in and disappeared in the direction of Lynn, but a general alarm was sent out by the Lynn police, but so far has been without result. Mrs. Larson was unable to give a detailed description of the men.

New York, Sept. 9.—Alfred W. Church, millionaire aviation enthusiast, filed suit in Bridgeport, Ct., for an absolute divorce. He accuses his wife with being intimate with William W. # FUND FOR CUNEO FAMILY CLOSES AT $23,568.54

Daily Average of $1,000 for 23 Days Shatters All Local Fund Records

The Boston American Cuneo Fund Committee today announced the formal closing of the fund raised for the benefit of the family of Patrolman Andrew B. Cuneo who was killed in the performance of his duty.

The fund now totals $23,568.54. This amount was raised in twenty-three days. A daily average of $1,000 was maintained, shattering all local fund records. Active campaigning ceased last Friday. Scattered donations are still coming in.

The committee will meet next Monday at 1:30 p. m. to take action relative to the disposition of the fund for the best interests of the widow and nine children of the murdered policeman. The fund will be placed in trust. Trustees will be appointed at the meeting.

The open letter issued by the committee reads as follows:

CITY OF BOSTON,
POLICE DEPARTMENT,
Office of the Commissioner,
Sept. 8, 1921.

THE ANDREW B. CUNEO FUND,
To the General Public and Contributors to the Andrew B. Cuneo Fund:

The committee in charge of raising the fund for the widow and family of Patrolman Andrew B. Cuneo is very much gratified by the liberal response to the call that was made and wishes to extend its sincere thanks to the general contributors. The fund has now reached a substantial figure, and while the committee feels that a larger sum would not be inappropriate, recognizing the fact that this brave policeman gave his life for the protection of his fellow-citizens, yet it appreciates that in these times there are many calls upon the generosity of our public spirited citizens. It therefore wishes to announce to the general public, that the subscription list of the fund is closed and your committee will shortly give notice of the total amount and the disposition that has been made of the fund.

The Boston American and the committee also wish publicly to thank Jacob Bradt, the well-known long distance swimmer of East Boston for his offer to help swell the fund by swimming from the State bathhouse in Revere to Nahant and return.

This plan had to be abandoned at the eleventh hour when it was discovered that there was an ironclad rule of the Metropolitan Park Commission against collections within the park reservation. The swim was called off through no fault of Bradt, who was ready and eager.

The efforts of Arthur Robbins, W. J. Pelletier and Rebecca Cohen in making collections deserve special mention.

Why is the air service selling brand new observation balloons at less than a fourth of their cost and buying 38 similar ones at wartime prices?

PUBLIC NOT INFORMED.

The public has not yet been told that the proposed rigid dirigible construction and operating station is to cost $6,164,000. This stupendous expenditure is planned in addition to the millions already spend for dirigibles, though there is nothing to show for the money excepting the lamentable ZR-2 tragedy.

Why is the American public told of but a tenth of the total cost of dirigible and observation balloons?

As a citizen you are entitled to know. It is you who dig down in your pockets to foot these bills.

Do you as a taxpayer know that new undeveloped motors for airships and airplanes are constantly being ordered, though the army and navy air services have over 20,000 brand new engines stored away which have cost over $200,000,000?

Why are steps not taken to stop this orgy of spending and waste?

NEW CONTRACTS SOUGHT.

These questions all deal with the "lighter-than-air" branch of the air service. This aerial arm has cost about $100,000,000 to date—about one-tenth of total aircraft expenditures.

The heavier-than-air branch, including all seaplanes, has cost more than $900,000,000 and shows a greater proportion of waste, favoritism, graft and maladministration.

These questions are especially timely, due to efforts of the Manufacturers' Aircraft Association to create the impression that we have but one dirigible, and to obtain contracts for more defective airships absolutely not needed.

AMERICAN LABOR LACKS LEADERS, HAPGOOD SAYS

Union Chiefs Fail to See Need of Meeting Capital Half Way, Writer Declares

By NORMAN HAPGOOD,

Staff Correspondent of the Boston American.

Washington, Sept. 9.—Although the blame at bottom, for troubles like those in West Virginia, rests on capital, as the dominant responsible influence, it is true that labor in this country is not intelligently led.

I do not refer to the recent violence. That is a mere symptom and has nothing to do with solutions. It does labor harm, usually, whenever there is violence. On the other hand, however, if a man spends all his life opposing violence, like Debs, the predominant system may get him just the same, and keep him in prison until he dies.

So we can forget the fracas and look at the conditions. To the credit of this administration, be it said, in spite of all the charges of the radicals, and in spite of its stupid cowardice in such cases as Debs and Russian trade, it has applied its mind earnestly to fundamental industrial conditions.

INTELLIGENT CONSERVATIVES.

It is made up of conservatives, yes; but intelligent conservatives are just as likely to be able to take steps in industrial troubles as radicals are; probably more so since they have the money and the experience.

Mr. Hoover has the most variously active mind in the administration. He has been thinking a lot about coal. He backed the Frelinghuysen bill, on the ground especially, that it promised ample publicity.

His point of view was that if all the facts about the coal business were kept before the public, said public would wake up and demand changes in the system.

The Frelinghuysen bill was sent back to committee. It was attacked from both sides. It was attacked by the radicals, although Senator Capper, sponsor for a more radical bill, consented to withdraw his bill and wait to see what happened to the Frelinghuysen bill.

CAPPER BILL MAY PASS.

The Capper bill provides for a large amount of regulation of the coal industry. If the Frelinghuysen bill does not pass, and if there is agitation about coal next Winter, the Capper bill is likely to pass.

While the radicals were attacking the Frelinghuysen bill, it was also attacked by the West Virginia mine owners. Up to the recent elections the officers of the National Mine Owners' Association were chosen by the operators from Pennsylvania, Indiana and Illinois. They supported the Frelinghuysen bill.

At the last election, however, the West Virginia people came into power. They chose an intelligent man for president, although an extreme conservative. But the majority of them are the Bourbon type who forget nothing, learn nothing and understand nothing beyond their ledgers.

THOUGHT BILL BOLSHEVISTIC.

These moss-backs thought even the Frelinghuysen Bill a kind of Bolshevism, although if there was ever a gentleman honestly and persistently devoted to property and its interests, that person is the Senator from New Jersey, who enjoys the special friendship of the President.

Another effort to mitigate the permanent situation, led by Mr. Hoover, was to bring about regularity of employment, operation and shipment, and thus strike at what keeps the whole coal business in such continual turmoil.

His proposal was addressed partly to capital, partly to labor. He proposed that during the Summer months, when coal does not move naturally, rates be lowered by the railroads and the price of coal be lowered. To labor he suggested that they accept corresponding seasonal wages.

Whether his suggestions should have been accepted just as they were, or used as basis for other suggestions, I do not pretend to say. The sad thing is that neither side seems interested in such terms. They just wish to fight.

SLIDING SCALE SUGGESTED.

From another gentleman, whose august position prevents my naming him, I have the suggestion that labor ought to be paid on a sliding scale. The worst evil of mining now is that the men work a little over half the time.

Suppose they were to be paid a certain wage for three days a week, which number of days would be guaranteed to them; or possibly four days. Then if they worked a fifth day, or a fifth and sixth day, they would receive a lower wage.

If you look at it you will see that such a contract would make it to the advantage of both sides to work the extra day. But try to put it into the head of either a union leader or a mine operator and he will give you a glassy stare.

Move for Stricter Sunday Spreads, Says Pastor

An unmistakable "Back to God" movement and a spirit of a better and more respectable observance of the Lord's Day is sweeping over New England. And all this without a reference to the much berated, and scorned Blue laws. This, according to Rev. M. D. Kneeland, secretary of the Lord Day League.

In Connecticut, according to Dr. Kneeland, Governor Lake, with the Legislature, has endorsed in many ways moves for the proper observance of Sunday by refraining to pass certain bills which would permit a loose observance of the Sabbath. A concerted campaign to speed this movement for a reverent observance of the Sabbath is under way and, with the endorsement of representative citizens all over New England, the movement is expected to spread rapidly, said Dr. Kneeland.

WHY YOU NEED IRON—

To make you strong and "brainy" and put the power into your blood to overcome disease germs

PRACTICAL ADVICE ON HOW TO DEVELOP GREAT ENERGY AND ENDURANCE

The food you eat contains carbon. When your food is digested it is absorbed from the intestines into the blood. When the carbon in your food comes in contact with the oxygen carried by the iron in your blood, the carbon and oxygen unite and by so doing they give off tremendous energy, thereby giving you great force, strength and endurance. Without iron your blood carries no oxygen and without oxygen there is nothing to unite with the carbon in your food, so that you eat and does you no good—you do not get any strength from it. In like manner, you bring a stove without coal to your house and have any heat unless the coal unites with the fire.

The strongest reason with which to prevent and overcome colds, pneumonia, kidney trouble, exhaustion, nervous prostration, in fact almost any disease or disease germs is power of good rich blood, strength, energy and endurance and the greatest energy carrier in the body is organic iron, not metallic iron which people usually take, but organic iron like you get in spinach, lentils and apples and like the iron contained in what is known as Nuxated Iron, Nuxated Iron which may be had from almost any drug gist.

If you have been taking metallic iron without benefit such as we prescribe Nuxated Iron, then by all means see your physician, Nuxated Iron often increases the strength, energy and endurance of weak, nervous, rundown folks in two weeks' time. It is such an extremely valuable product that even the Press at Rome wrote especially of its merits in a communication to the Pharmacie Normale. It has been used and highly recommended by former United States Senators, Members of Congress, Judges of U. S. Courts, many physicians and prominent men.

Over 4,000,000 people are now using it annually. Satisfactory results are guaranteed or the manufacturers will refund your money. Ask for all druggists in tablet form only.—Advt.

DIVORCE MARKS END OF KNOX ROMANCE

Last Chapter of Harvard Athlete's Love Story Is Written at Dedham

Boston and New York society received a jolt today when it learned that the romance of James L. Knox and Florence Caroline Moll Knox had been wrecked and that Mrs. Knox had been granted a decree of divorce from Harvard athlete and coach on grounds of intoxication. The divorce was granted in the Norfolk County Superior Court at Dedham.

Used to surprises from "Jimmy" Knox, yet the sudden ending of a romance that had rivalled fiction came as a bolt from the blue.

Engaged back in 1910 to the beautiful Miss Leonora M. Edie of Washington, former debutante and member of a prominent Washington family, Knox gave society its first jolt when without warning he jilted the beautiful capital belle and eloped with her niece, Florence Caroline Moll, and sailed for Italy.

While society gasped and hastened to console the jilted girl, Miss Edie retired to a sanitarium in a state of collapse and cabled no forgiveness and love to her niece and errant fiance.

As the wounds of blighted love gradually healed Miss Edie's affection turned to wrath and she filed a suit for damages against the former Harvard athlete. She alleged that Knox had agreed to pay her $150 a month until they were married and a jury in the Supreme Court in New York agreed with her. Thus the romance that ended in the divorce court in Dedham cost Jimmy Knox $5,400.

To the suit of his jilted fiancee, Knox, who was then forty-two years old, while his bride was but twenty-one, replied that he feared Miss Edie, fearing even for his life.

As coach at Harvard Jimmy Knox's strategy continually wore down the charge of the Eli bulldog.

Was it the same strategy that he displayed in football that led to the unusual romance that made a niece the bride of her aunt's fiance, asked society, as the unusual romance set tongues in the drawing rooms of Fifth avenue, Beacon street and Newport wagging.

And what happened to the strategy, is the question they asked today, as the romance ended with the signing of a decree of divorce in the old Court House at Dedham.

STUART STREET WIDENING TO BE PUSHED

Mayor Accepts Legislative Act; Work to Cost $2,741,068

Mayor Peters today announced that he had signed the official acceptance of the act of the Legislature, providing for laying out and widening Stuart and Eliot streets.

This is the largest and most important highway improvement undertaken by the city since street work in connection with the construction of the South Station, will be pushed through at a cost of $2,741,068.25, or more than $200,000 less than the authorized loan.

The property through which the new thoroughfare will run will be benefited, it is estimated, more than $2,200,000, leaving a net cost to the city of $371,133.

The act provides for the creation of a new highway from Huntington avenue at the point it crosses the Boston & Albany railroad tracks to Tremont street at the corner of Eliot. The latter street will be widened from Tremont street to Washington.

Experts who have studied the situation predict that few of the damages awards made in connection with the condemnation proceedings incident to the improvement will be contested, as it is believed the assessed valuation placed upon the properties has been fair.

Five Bicyclists Off for Annual "Wheel About the Hub"

Five members of the Boston Bicycle Club left the corner of Walnut avenue and Warren street at 3:30 today on the beginning of the club's thirty-first annual run—the two-day "Wheel about the Hub."

Proceeding around Jamaica Pond, the cyclists' itinerary calls for a stop at the Mansfield Tavern, in Mansfield, at 5:30 p. m. Leaving Mansfield in the morning, they will proceed to the home of Frank P. Sibley in Hingham for a clambake, wheeling back to Boston tomorrow evening.

The five who started on the trip were Theodore Roffo, Ora Davis, James F. Higgins, C. F. Travis and Charles W. Read. George Wright, old-time baseball star with the Boston Nationals, and Abbot Pasett, seventy-seven years old, for thirty-four years secretary of the League of American Wheelmen, followed them in an automobile.

SLAYER OF GIRL IS CAPTURED AT LYNN

McDermott Gives Self Up to Police After Shooting of Monica Morrill.

Philip J. McDermott, sixty-one-year-old Lynn shoeworker, who eluded the police of Lynn and surrounding cities all day Thursday, following the murder of Mrs. Monica Morrill, another Lynn shoeworker, walked into Lynn police headquarters today and surrendered.

McDermott, according to the police, confessed to the murder yesterday of Mrs. Morrill, declaring he shot her because she had sneered at him after "milking him of all of his money."

The police say McDermott stated he had purchased a revolver last Wednesday, and yesterday lay in wait for Mrs. Morrill on Union street, Lynn. He told the police that, when Mrs. Morrill came along the street he stepped her and asked her why she failed to keep an appointment with him on Wednesday night.

"She sneered at me," the police say he stated, and at that McDermott is alleged to have confessed he ran into the building where the woman worked and, as she reached a landing on the stairs, shot her.

Last night he remained near the wharf and early today decided he would give himself up. He walked direct to Lynn police headquarters

If you have Catarrhal Deafness or are hard of hearing or have head noises go to your druggist and get 4 ounce of Parmint (double strength) and add to it ½ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take one tablespoonful four times a day. This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. "Values speak for themselves"

Asserts one basement customer. Read her letter:

"——I think you are to be congratulated on the auspicious opening of your new basement store. I arrived there about ten o'clock and found a 'safe and sane' crowd there. The personnel of the customers seemed better than that of the average * * * and your clerks, so far as I had any dealings with them, were refreshingly courteous. The good merchandise values spoke for themselves. Such a combination seems to assure the success of your new venture.

"Sincerely Yours,

1 DEAD, 1 HURT, IN BAKESHOP ACCIDENTS

Girls Canoeing on Lake at Norton Are Among Latest Victims

Four deaths from drowning were reported in various parts of the State today. Two victims were girls, one of whom gave her life in an effort to save a chum, and two were men.

Helen Lincoln of Norton was drowned when she struggled in the waters of Lake Winneconnett, Norton, to save her friend, Josephine Fay of Medford.

The two girls had been canoeing when their light craft upset. Miss Lincoln struggled to save Miss Fay, and managed to keep her afloat until help arrived. The struggle was too much for her, however, and she was taken ashore exhausted. Resuscitation measures failed. Miss Fay was saved.

The body of Miss Edwina Daiby, twenty-two years old, of North Scituate, was found floating lifeless on the surface of Mystic Lake, Winchester, by Ralph Wilkins, a barber. She was believed to have been overcome by the chilly water.

Charles B. Brown, sixty years old, field secretary of the Y. M. C. A. in New England, stationed at a sailor's recreation camp in Provincetown, was drowned when stricken with cramps while swimming in Provincetown Harbor. His home was at No. 12 West Baltimore street, Lynn.

John F. Murphy, twenty-eight years old, of Pittsfield, was drowned in Pontoosuc Lake while swimming about sixty feet from shore, after being seized with cramps.

SEEKS ONE-CENT BASIS ON LOCAL PHONE CALLS

A. P. Connor, a patent attorney in Springfield, petitioned the Department of Public Utilities, asking for a revision of the present system of telephone rates on the basis of 1 cent per call for "local" calls. The Springfield attorney charged that Boston and the metropolitan district are unjustly favored in the present rate system as compared with the remainder of the State. No action on the petition has been taken as yet by the commission.

Lawrence Man Ground to Death in Mixer; Lynn Workman Loses Two Fingers

One baker in Lawrence was ground to death when he fell into a mechanical dough mixer, and another in Lynn lost two fingers when his left hand was caught beneath the rollers of a rolling machine.

Solomon Schwartz, sixty-three years old, was at work at his bakery, No. 112 Valley street, Lawrence, when he slipped on a fragment of soft dough and pitched headlong into the big mechanical mixer. Before his son, Louis, could shut off the power both the arms of the elder man had been chopped off, and his body horribly mangled.

Charles Rollins, of No. 15 Tapley street, Lynn, employed at No. 14 Ontario street, was taken to the Lynn Hospital with two fingers amputated by a rolling machine.

PITEOUS PLIGHT OF RUSSIAN CHILDREN

Woman Worker of Quakers Describes Sufferings in Famine Area

By International News Service

Samara, Russia, Sept. 9 (Via Moscow and London, Sept. 9).—Anna Haines, of the American Society of Friends (Quakers) who has had much previous experience in arranging famine relief in Samara, told the International News Service today some outstanding facts of the misery now prevailing here and of the headway made by the relief workers.

"Six government relief institutions have been opened since May," said Miss Haines. "These have handled mainly the relief of abandoned children, which is a tremendous task. First of all the suffering little ones have to be distributed among hospitals, sanatoriums and orphanages and the handling of the evacuation trains is a separate task.

"A typical case in that of an institution which planned to take care of sixty cases and now has 400. More arrive daily and the place is flooded with sick and hungry 'cases.' It is not unusual to see four children in one bed.

"Hundreds have to sleep on the floor. Sheets, blankets are sadly lacking and it is impossible to bathe them properly or even change their clothing.

"The children are pitiable sights. Their arms and legs are wasted to the bone by starvation. Many of them are so weak they cannot stand up. Dysentery is most frequent and there are many cases of measles and influenza while the cholera epidemic has abated, thanks to the thorough going combative measures taken by the Soviet government and aided by the American relief workers.

"I saw 87 children in one room. They were thin and yellow, and horribly plagued by vermin. The caretakers, though shivering with malaria, work with unconquerable endurance and devotion to relieve the little ones' plight as best they can.

"The main meal for the entire group of 87 children consisted of six loaves of black bread and a bucket of thin cereal soup from potato peelings."

U. S. INSISTS ON HAVING VOICE IN MANDATES

Note Reasserts Rights in Disposition of German and Turkish Colonies

By International News Service.

Geneva, Sept. 9.—The United States, in his latest mandate note to the allied powers, insists that America shall have the same rights in mandatory territories as members of the League of Nations, it was learned here today. The text of the American note has been received by the delegates of the allied powers attending the League of Nations assembly meetings from the various allied foreign offices.

It is understood that the American note raises the following points:

1—American reasserts that the allies must consult her before disposing of the former German colonies.

2—American insists that she have the same trade rights in mandate territories as members of the League of Nations.

3—No mandate shall be modified without the consent of the United States.

4—The American note meets the allied argument that the United States did not war on Turkey and consequently has no voice in the disposition of Turkish colonies by asserting that Turkey would not have been defeated if the United States had not fought Germany.

5—The American note suggests that capitulations be maintained in Syria, Palestine and Mesopotamia until effective governments can be established in those countries.

PROVIDENCE BOY HIT BY AUTO NEAR DEATH

Providence, Sept. 9.—An automobile operated by Pasquale DeMain, Aborn street, while on Bridgham street blocked down Richard Dunn, eight years old, son of Mrs. Rose Dunn, No. 164 Bridgham street. The boy was returning home with a carload of kindling wood and had stepped from behind a team when he was struck. Dr. William F. Scanlon, riding in the car with DeMaio, administered first aid and took the boy to St. Joseph's Hospital, where he is on the danger list.

Brookline Resident Is Granted Divorce on Cruelty Charge

MRS. CLARA VAN HORN

Finis was written at the end of a romance of the Golden West of thirty-five years ago when Mrs. Clara Van Horn of Brookline was handed a decree of divorce in the Norfolk County Superior Court at Dedham from Isaac Van Horn of Maines City, Fla.

How the ties that were bound out in far Omaha, Neb., gradually loosened until cruel and abusive treatment formed a complaint for their complete severance was revealed as the suit against Van Horn, who for a time was manager of the Longford Company of America, manufacturers of automobile parts, progressed.

Still strikingly handsome, Mrs. Van Horn revealed the lights and shadows of her married life, how they were married August 10, 1898, at Omaha, and how all was happy until they came East about 15 years ago.

MME. PETROVA INJURED IN AUTO CRASH

Three Ribs Fractured When New York Street Car Rams Her Machine

New York, Sept. 9.—With three ribs fractured when a Fifty-ninth street car crashed into her automobile near Columbus Circle yesterday, Mme. Olga Petrova is at the Plaza Hotel today suffering acutely but in no serious injury.

The accident happened while she was on her way from her home at Great Neck, L. I., to the office of her husband, Dr. John D. Stewart, of No. 36 West Fifty-ninth street. Her automobile was struck by the trolley, one side being smashed in and the actress pinned against the opposite wall.

A great crowd, recognizing the actress, gathered at once and three men lifted her from her wrecked limousine and carried her to the office of Dr. Post, where her husband was summoned and aided in caring for her.

The production of "The Silver Peacock," in which she had the leading role, will have to be postponed for at least a month, it was said today.

QUINCY CHURCH IS FIRED BY VANDALS

Youths Trample on American Flag and Destroy Property in Wollaston Edifice

After ransacking the Unitarian Church in the Wollaston section of Quincy, vandals set two separate fires within the edifice and then trampled upon an American flag, which they had ripped from its place above the altar in the church auditorium.

Prompt discovery by Janitor Percy L. Butler undoubtedly prevented serious fire loss. The fire damage is estimated at $100. The damage to church property through vandalism will reach several hundred dollars.

The Quincy police are searching for three youths, seen loitering about the church shortly before the fires were discovered. One youth was seen waving an American flag in the rear of the church, which had been stripped from above the altar, and was afterward found on the basement floor.

Police Chief Arthur W. Goodhue of Quincy declares the police have a good description of the three boys, and that they will be apprehended later today.

The church kitchen was a mass of flames when Janitor Butler arrived. Police declare the boys poured oil on the table cloth in the church kitchen and then set it afire.

In the assembly room the youths set fire to a cane bottom chair.

The new building allows the entire lower floor of Davis Hall to be used by the women students as a sewing room. Additional dining rooms have also been arranged for.

RICH WOMAN'S SLAYER WAS SPRINGFIELD MAN

Springfield, Sept. 9.—Finger prints taken February 8, 1917, in police headquarters here, have served to identify Lawrence Kubal, who is in the death house in Sing Sing for the murder of wealthy Mrs. Minnie Barrlett, as Lawrence Stefik, formerly of Congress street, this city. A reward of $1,000 offered by the police of Hempstead, N. Y., for information leading to his arrest, was collected by Stefik's wife and his brother, the former receiving $900 and the latter $100.

LOWELL TEXTILE MILLS ARE SPEEDING UP

Optimistic Feeling Pervades Manufacturers; Metal Trades Booming

Lowell, Sept. 9.—Business in Lowell's great textile mills is improving. While conditions are not yet normal, orders are coming in greater volume than has been true for months, and a feeling of optimism prevails all along the line.

While Lowell mill agents prefer to keep on the conservative side in discussing business prospects, they agree that the mills generally face a period of consistent operation. In these mills are employed 20,000 people.

The woolen mills are on full time and business is good. Metal manufacturing shows the same encouraging trend. The Saco-Lowell machine shops are working on orders that have been coming consistently. The Gillespie shops, where electric washing machines are made, are running night and day and the company is advertising for help.

Boot and shoe factories report a definite improvement. There is a surplus of unskilled help in the city, but the unemployed are not as numerous as they were two months ago.

FINED FOR THEFT OF CLOTH FROM MILL

Lawrence, Sept. 9.—Sweaters made from Washington Mills yarn and fifteen yards of cloth manufactured at the same plant in this city were found in a search at the home of Stanley Beez of Rankin court, it was claimed by corporation detectives in District Court when Beez was arraigned on a larceny charge. The court imposed a fine of $50.

ASKS FOR ONE-CENT RATE FOR PHONE CALLS

Telephone rates of one-cent for "local" calls is asked in a petition filed by A. P. Connor, a Springfield lawyer, with the Public Utilities Commission. He charges that Boston and the Metropolitan district are unfairly favored over the rest of the State in the present arrangement. The petition was taken under advisement.

WORKER CRUSHED BY BEAM ON STEAMER

Thomas Stack, forty-one years old and married, of No. 115 Pearl street, Somerville, sustained contusions of the back, left arm and thigh when a falling beam struck him while at work in the hold of the White Star Line steamer Cretic, tied up at Commonwealth pier. His condition is not said to be serious at the City Hospital.

ROSLINDALE GIRL WED IN SCHOOL ROMANCE

A school boy and girl romance came to its natural climax yesterday in a wedding that interested people of Dorchester and Roslindale, when Miss Margaret M. McNair of Roslindale became the bride of Arthur A. Donovan of Dorchester in the Sacred Heart Church, Roslindale. Mrs. Raymond E. Kaiser of Roslindale was matron of honor. Edward M. Donovan of Dorchester was best man for his brother. Rev. Cornelius Donovan, another brother of the bridegroom, performed the ceremony.

F. D. ROOSEVELT BETTER, WIFE DECLARES

Legs Affected by Form of Rheumatism, Say Attending Doctors

Easiport, Me., Sept. 9.—Reports here today say Franklin D. Roosevelt, candidate for Vice-President last year, is seriously ill at his Summer cottage on the Canadian island of Campobello. New Brunswick, two miles across Easiport harbor. It is reported both legs are affected by some sort of partial paralysis and that he will be taken away September 14 by the several specialists.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt at the Roosevelt home in Hyde Park today said Mr. Roosevelt was much improved when she left Campobello on Wednesday.

"Mr. Roosevelt has been quite ill, but is improved. His physician said he will be able to come home in about ten days," she stated. "He has suffered from trouble with his legs which interfered with their normal use, but there has been no suggestion of paralysis. His trouble has not been diagnosed to the complete satisfaction of his physician, but they are of the opinion it is a form of rheumatism."

Burglary Insurance Rates Raised 10 P. C. by Crime Wave

By Associated Press.

New York, Sept. 9.—New Yorkers who want to insure their belongings against theft, beginning next Monday, will have to pay 10 per cent. more than in the past, it was announced today.

Declaring the increased number of robberies here was playing havoc with profits, the burglary insurance underwriters association decided on the increased rates at a meeting yesterday.

The rate on wines and liquors was boosted to $75 for each $1,000 of insurance.

SACCOS QUIT BRANDEIS HOME; GO TO REVERE

Mrs. Nicola Sacco and her two young children, Dante and Inez, who have been living for two months in the before named Dedham home of Judge Louis D. Brandeis of the United States Supreme Court, have moved to a small tenement of their own in Revere. Mrs. Sacco and her children moved because the Brandeis house is unfitted for Winter occupancy. They were living in a few rooms of the big home so they could be near the husband and father, confined in Dedham jail awaiting action on an appeal for a new trial. He was found guilty last July of first-degree murder.

BEVERLY MAN SHOT IN ROW OVER GIRL

Victim Dying While Police Are Searching Nearby Cities for Assailant

Police of Beverly, Salem and surrounding cities are searching for Joseph Frustoto, twenty-six years old, who, it is alleged, fired three bullets into the body of Palo Zambello, thirty-two years old, of No 732 Hale street, Beverly Farms. The latter is dying at the Beverly Hospital.

The shooting took place near Linehan's Ledge, Pride's Crossing, Beverly, and was caused, police allege, after the victim had warned Frustoto not to persist in his attentions to the sister of Zambello. Frustoto then upbraided Zambello for writing derogatory letters about him to Providence, R. I., friends.

Suddenly wheeling about, Frustoto is said to have pulled a 32-calibre revolver from his pocket and sent three bullets crashing into Zambello's body. Two punctured the right lung and one entered the right arm.

Police declare a party of Italian workmen resting near the scene made no attempt to capture Frustoto, who made for the woods nearby.

Fresh From Paris

Latest Word From Marie Suzanne

PARIS, France.

LACE finds an opening in nearly every branch of the Autumn mode—this time lace for Spain's sake! Over a slip of fuchsia satin, black all-over lace falls its graceful way, with never a thought for any but the slender silhouette. The wrapped bodice has a batteau neckline and long, widening sleeves and side panels deeper than the skirt are edged with pleated net, the entirety being an afternoon gown of unusual smartness.

A COAT dress—that most satisfactory of combinations to which the Paris openings devote much effort—is impartial enough to divide its honors between heavy black satin and black Chantilly lace. The waist-deep cape of the coat has its lace yoke gathered and turned over in a narrow collar extending in revers to the waistline in front, and the round-necked sleeveless bodice and full tunic of the frock beneath are also of the lace. To complete the costume comes a wide black satin hat

JOBLESS GIVEN BEDS WITHOUT CHOPPING WOOD

Ledoux Shatters Age-Old Precedent at the Municipal Wayfarers' Lodge

Urbain Ledoux, champion of the unemployed, has shattered another long-established Boston precedent in the interests of his jobless proteges.

He has forced, or induced, the Municipal Wayfarers' Lodge to provide beds for upwards of 100 unemployed men without requiring of them the customary two hours' labor in the woodpile on arising.

Early in the week Ledoux appealed to authorities at the lodge to help him provide beds for his homeless men. He particularly objected to the woodpile feature of the lodge, saying that it prevented the men from going out to hunt work at the most advantageous time of the day—between 7 and 9 in the morning.

Ledoux was told that the rule was iron-bound, and that the unemployment situation in Boston wasn't as bad as it was painted, anyway.

"We have ample accommodations for all the unemployed," officials told him.

Ledoux smiled his quiet smile, and proceeded to lead 158 homeless men to the lodge for shelter. Only fifty-eight could be accommodated.

That was on Wednesday night. Ledoux said nothing. But last night he again went to the lodge, this time followed by about 120 men. When he got there he found that, in some manner, many extra beds had been provided. The result was that every one of his proteges was given a place to sleep at the lodge. And when morning came they were allowed to start at once on their hunt for work, while the wood-pile was left desolate.

Ledoux merely smiles and says: "The people at the lodge simply didn't understand how things were. Now they do understand, and are willing to help."

His assistants, however, chortle gleefully and cry: "He has called the lodge's bluff."

A professional auctioneer will "sell" Ledoux at noon today, when more helpless, penniless men are sold at auction from the Parkman Bandstand on Boston Common.

Yesterday Ledoux gave Boston a jolt, when he offered nine men, many of them war veterans, "for sale" for one week. The strain on his voice was too great, however, and today he can talk only in a whisper. But he promises that the work will go on.

"I am trying to awaken Boston's civic conscience," he said. "This city will yet realize that it has a duty in regard to these men."

Shortly after daybreak today Ledoux led two dozen of his men to a restaurant for breakfast. These are the men who will be offered on the auction block at noon. The terms of the sale are as follows: The man who is "sold agrees to go with his purchaser and do for him any and all work that may be required for one week. In return, the purchaser agrees to feed and lodge the man during that time.

OUSTING OF FIRE CHIEF AROUSES MEDFORD

Citizens Plan Mass Meeting to Demand Qualey's Reinstatement

A mass meeting of Medford citizens to demand the reinstatement of Chief Thomas W. Qualey of the Medford fire department, who was forcibly ejected from fire headquarters by order of Mayor Haines, will probably be held in Medford armory.

Several members of the board of aldermen of that city met today and discussed the matter. It is likely that the board will be petitioned by fifty citizens who will ask that a mass meeting be held. Under the city charter the fight for reinstatement may then be carried to the Legislature by another petition. The matter may be further discussed at tonight's special meeting of the aldermanic board.

After being ejected Chief Qualey said he would bring civil suit against the policemen who did the job. After the ejectment of Qualey a police guard remained near fire headquarters to prevent him from returning. A crowd of 500 persons was attracted to the spot.

WIFE AMAZED BY $25,000 SUIT IN ALIENATION

Ayer Woman Declares That Her Husband Has No Cause for Action

Ayer, Sept. 9.—The $25,000 alienation of affections suit directed against Orrin N. Kidder of Ayer by James A. McDonald, who charges that through Kidder's attentions Mrs. McDonald lost love for her husband is without foundation, Mrs. McDonald declared today.

"Why, the first I ever heard of the suit was when neighbors told me about it," she said. "My husband never mentioned it to me. There is no cause for action. The only reason I can give for the suit is that my husband may be mentally deranged."

The suit charges, among other things, a great number of automobile rides taken by Mrs. McDonald and Kidder. Both were emphatic in insisting they had never ridden together except in the company of other people.

McDonald, his wife asserted, has not yet talked either to her or to Kidder concerning the suit, and their only information about it is based on newspaper stories and what their neighbors have told them.

The McDonalds have been married for twenty-eight years. All three of the parties to the suit have been prominent in Odd Fellow and Rebekah circles in Ayer.

Spent $406,000 to Give 'Mecca' to Theatre Going Public

MORRIS GEST

GEST IS HERE WITH 'MECCA' COMPANY

New York Producer Asserts It Biggest Spectacle Ever Staged

Back to the home of his boyhood, where he once sold papers on the street to make a precarious living, came Morris Gest today, and furthermore the theatrical impresario brings with him the largest and most spectacular theatrical production he has ever sponsored.

This is "Mecca," a gorgeous Oriental extravaganza, which will begin its Boston engagement at the Boston Opera House next Monday night.

A GREAT SPECTACLE.

"In all my career," said Mr. Gest in New York yesterday, "I have never seen a bigger or more spectacular offering than 'Mecca.' There never has been anything like it in the world, and without venturing to become a prophet, I don't believe there ever will be another show like it.

"The reason is that it cost $406,000 to raise the curtain, and that price is prohibitive for any further theatrical productions. When I speak of such a big sum, please think of the contrast between today, when I can afford to invest that much money, and those old days in Boston when I was a kid and glad to get two cents for a newspaper on Washington street."

203 IN COMPANY.

Mr. Gest, who has not visited Boston in several years, will be extensively entertained by friends during his visit. He will stay at the Hotel Lenox.

The "Mecca" company, comprising 203 people, three camels, five horses, six donkeys and a flock of goats, will arrive in Boston today with Mr. Gest. A special stable near the Boston Opera House has been leased for the four-footed artists. There will be dress rehearsals of "Mecca" tonight and tomorrow night, to see that local stage hands become familiar with the scenery. "Mecca" ran all of last season in New York and Chicago so a smooth performance is assured.

LYNN SHOE MEN SUE UNION STITCHERS

Accuse Organization of Conspiracy to Reduce Production by Control of Hiring Help

Twenty-one shoe manufacturers today filed bills in equity in the Supreme Court alleging that officers and members of the Women Stitchers' Union and the United Shoe Workers have combined and conspired to take control of the hiring and retention of help in the stitching department.

The bills seek to restrain the defendants from continuing certain union working regulations which it is alleged have resulted in the control of employment and factory production by the unions.

The particular rule against which the bill is aimed requires that union stitchers must have a permit signed by D. A. Maynard, business agent of the union, before they can be employed.

The manufacturers assert that this rule is in violation of the peace agreement signed with the unions, October 3, 1920 and that it has prevented them from obtaining all the stitchers they require and has thus reduced production.

$50,000,000 IS INVOLVED IN 2 WEDDINGS

Patterson-Parsons and Cheney-Delano Nuptials Affect Great Fortunes

Lenox, Sept. 9.—Social circles here and in Stockbridge are all agog over the wedding today of Miss Elsie Parsons and Morehead Patterson, in this town, and the wedding of Colonel Sherwood A. Cheney and Miss Louise Delano at Stockbridge.

The four principals represent more than $50,000,000 in wealth and the 4,000 invitations issued for both affairs will bring to these communities many social elect of the East.

Many thousands of dollars' worth of gowns will be worn by the two brides. Miss Parsons will wear a $6,000 creation made in Paris for the occasion.

Colonel Cheney and Miss Delano will be married at the Stockbridge Congregational Church, with Rev. William Wallace Penn, D. D., dean of the Harvard Divinity School, officiating. The bride will be attended by Mrs. Alexander Gait of Brookline. Mayor Peters of Boston and Elliott Wadsworth, assistant Secretary of State, will be ushers.

SCHOOL GIRLS ADOPT UNIFORM STYLE OF DRESS

Los Angeles, Sept. 9.—Whether skirts are to be long or remain as they are this Fall is a question not bothering the girls of the Bonita High School, according to report from La Verne. For, during school hours at least, they will dress alike, and the costume specifications as adopted, call for a fun-pleated blue serge skirt and a white middy blouse with blue collar and cuffs. Black cotton stockings and low-heeled shoes will complete the outfit. A review held September's first school bell have revealed the ensemble as neat, practical and universally becoming, it is reported.

SOCIETY HAPPENINGS OF GREATER BOSTON

"Midsummer Fantasie" at Manchester-by-the-Sea

By BETTY ALDEN.

North shore society is all prepared to be amused this evening when a "Midsummer Fantasie" consisting of a play entitled "In the Pasture Garden," and twelve tableaux, will be presented at 8 o'clock in the Horticultural Hall at Manchester-by-the-Sea. The performance is for the benefit of the Sunnyside Day Nursery.

Due to the fact that members of the exclusive Summer colony along the shore are themselves taking part in the play and the living pictures, society is naturally evincing particular interest in the affair, and an unusually large crowd is expected. Mrs. Hendricks M. Whitman, Joseph Linden Smith, Mrs. Leslie Buswell and Gordon Mead are putting on the play. The tableaux are being presented by Mrs. Henry H McKean, Jr., Mrs William Parker, Miss Chesboro, Mrs John Lawrence, Mrs. Hendricks H. Whitman, Mrs. Thomas Bluner, Mrs. Alvin Sortwell, Mrs. Walter Tufts and Mrs. Robert Potter.

The list of patronesses for this evening's entertainment contains some of the best-known names of Boston and North shore society. The list includes Mmes. Gordon Abbott, Byron J. Allan, Reginald Beardman, Frederick J. Bradlee, T. Jefferson Coolidge, Francis B. Crowninshield, Walter D. Denegre, Marshall Field, Lester Leland, James Proctor, George H. Swift, Bayard Tuckerman, Jr., Ronald Tree, Bayard Warren and Samuel D. Warren

The signs of the times are clearly visible, as far as returning Summering society is concerned. Already are the servants of wealthy families being sent on ahead to make the gloomy boarded-up town houses comfortable for habitation. Recently I noted that at No. 329 Commonwealth avenue the Winter abode of Stephen Howe Bennett and his daughter, Helen Bennett, preparations were under way to make the house ship-shape for the return of the family, which is Summering at York Beach, Me. As a rule, the Bennetts return to town shortly after Labor Day, and they are probably holding true to their custom this year.

Mrs. Russell Sturgis Codman of Marlboro street and Manchester is visiting in Lenox, Mass., where she is the guest of Miss Adele Kneeland of New York, at the latter's country estate, "Fairlawn."

Those of the Newport Summer colony and others who have never heard Dr. Alexander Hamilton Rice lecture upon his explorations in the Amazon regions will have an opportunity to hear him a week from Friday at the Art Association. He is to give his illustrated lecture at that time for the benefit of the fund being raised by Trinity Church for a new parish house.

Among the patronesses for the event are Mmes. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Hugh D. Auchincloss, Stuart Duncan, Frederick Pearson, A. H. Rice and T. Suffern Tailer.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard S. Townsend of Otis place are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick B. Robins of New York at "Fairfield Farms," Great Barrington.

MRS. FRANCIS W. SARGENT, JR.

Announcement has recently been made of the engagement of Mrs. Francis W. Sargent, Jr. (Margery Lee) to Arthur Adams, Harvard, '99, of Pinckney street. Mrs. Sargent, Jr., whose home is in Dover, Mass., is the daughter of Mrs. George Lee of Beverly Farms. Mrs. Sargent's husband died a little over a year ago.

The Lenox Club this evening will be the scene of an elaborate ball which Mr and Mrs. Herbert Parsons of New York are giving for their daughter Elsie, and her wedding party, Miss Parsons' marriage to Morehead Patterson taking place tomorrow noon in Trinity Church, Lenox.

Mr. and Mrs. Newbold Morris of Lenox have also issued invitations for a ball at their villa, "Brookhurst," this evening. Lenox villas and hotels are crowded with weekend guests who have gone to the Berkshires for the wedding of Miss Parsons and that of Miss Louise Delano to Colonel Sherwood Cheney in Stockbridge.

CAPITAL STOCK TAX REPEAL FAVORED

Secretary Mellon Urges Upon Senate Committee Greater Relief for Business

By Universal Service.

Washington, Sept. 9.—A taxation increase of $250,000,000 over the levies provided for in the revenue revision bill recently passed by the House was recommended to the Senate Finance Committee Tuesday by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon.

Greater relief for business than heretofore had been suggested by the Administration was urged by Mr Mellon. He asked that the excess profits tax repeal be made retroactive, that income surtaxes be reduced to 25 per cent., effective January 1 1922 instead of 22 per cent. as provided in the House measure and proposed that the capital stock tax be repealed. The suggestion that the capital stock tax be abolished had not been made before.

To make up for the loss of revenue that would result from the proposed repeals, the Secretary recommended that only one-half the transportation taxes be repealed for the next calendar year, that corporation income taxes be increased an additional 2½ per cent., and that other taxes repealed by the House be reinstated.

Mr. Mellon's recommendations closely followed the taxation program decided on at the recent White House conference between President Harding, Secretary Mellon and Republican House leaders. All features of that program that had been overturned by the House should be restored, Mr Mellon told the Finance Committee.

The administration will be able to carry out its program of economy, the Secretary told the committee. He said he had "no doubt but that the economies planned would be carried out." The contemplated savings in expenditures during the present year totaled $520,000,000, including $360,000,000 reduction in the expenses of the Federal governmental departments.

NEGRO WHIPPED FOR BEATING HIS WIFE

Offender Lashed at Post by Baltimore Sheriff at Court's Order

Baltimore, Sept. 9.—Wearing under five stinging lashes of a rawhide whip, wielded by Sheriff Thomas F. McNulty, Cornelius Smith, negro wife-beater, was punished here in accordance with a sentence imposed several weeks ago by Judge Duffy in criminal court.

The whipping, which took place in the main corridor of the city jail, was witnessed by more than a dozen men, including deputy sheriffs, jail [illegible] and newspaper men. It was the first time for a period of [illegible] years that the whipping post at the jail has been used.

As soon as Smith was released from his manacles, he stepped from the platform and with head erect and a surly look on his face walked over to where he had left his clothes.

"I think the whipping post is just the thing for brutes of that type," said Sheriff McNulty. "I would recommend a public whipping of wife beaters where scenes of the crowd witness the beating."

PREDICTS DEATH OF IMPORT TRAFFIC

Annihilation Certain if the Fordney Tariff Bill Is Passed, Says Barr

A mighty groundswell of opposition to the American valuation provisions in the Fordney tariff bill is rising among retail merchants in New England.

Merchants who have been heavy importers of goods, because they could secure better buys abroad, demand that Congress defeat the sections of the bill that would require import duties to be made according to the valuation of corresponding articles in America, and not according to foreign values, as has been the custom for a century.

The bill has passed the House of Representatives and is now before the Senate.

DEATH TO IMPORTING.

Alfred G. Barr, vice-president of the New England Importers' and Traders' Association, and manager of the foreign department of the Pierce Company, said today that if the Fordney bill becomes law it will annihilate the import traffic.

He said that there will follow much litigation as to the proper value upon which duty shall be assessed and result in an increase in the cost of living.

"Whenever an article is imported," continued Mr. Barr, "government appraisers will have to find an American equivalent and then assess the imported goods according to the American valuation. On this point there will be much difference of opinion.

"The cost of living will rise because we will not be able to pass along to consumers advantages we now gain by buying abroad, because the import duty will take up the difference.

INIQUITOUS BILL.

"Too great stress cannot be placed upon what is unquestionably the most iniquitous piece of tariff legislation that has ever been proposed by an American Congress, in the shape of the American valuation plan in the Fordney tariff bill.

"There is absolutely no reason for making this proposed change and for destroying the experience and information which has been gathered by American special agents abroad for more than a century.

"The charge made that foreign goods are undervalued and do not pay duty on their proper value is absolutely absurd, as is also the charge that the government is losing its rightful duties by reason of the depleted rates of foreign exchange. Every merchant will testify to the fact that where the exchange has depreciated perhaps in extreme instances 50 per cent, that the value of the merchandise purchased abroad has increased not only 50 per cent but in many instances 500 and 1,000 per cent.

OPENS UP LITIGATION.

"The American valuation opens up an almost unlimited field for litigation as to the proper value upon which duty shall be assessed, but worse than this it absolutely precludes the importer from estimating the cost of his goods, and who will dare to import merchandise when it will be absolutely impossible to figure what the ultimate cost will be.

"It is not too broad a statement to say that if the American valuation plan is passed by Congress, that it will mean the annihilation of our import traffic. European countries impoverished by the long years of war, are absolutely unable to pay in cash for the American products which must be exported to them. These American goods must be paid for by goods shipped from these countries to America.

"It does not require any extreme effort of the mind to see how obvious it will be that if our import traffic is stopped, our export traffic must be tremendously curtailed. It is to be hoped that the flood of protests which are being forwarded to Washington will arouse a sufficient majority of our Congressmen to realize the mistake of this proposed measure."

Milwaukee Merchants Oppose Tariff Bill

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 8.—Retail merchants here are flooding Congress with protests against the Fordney tariff bill, which provides that duties be assessed according to American valuation and not according to foreign values as formerly. Telegrams have been sent by the following:

Department stores—Boston, Schuster, Kaspehain's, Chapman's, Gimbel's.

Men's furnishings and clothing—A. J. Smith, chairman of the Milwaukee Retail Merchants' Committee; Hurley-Reilly Company, Capper & Capper, Trester & Trester, Bloch Brothers, Toepfer & Bellack.

Women's apparel—Reisler's, Garretson's, Hansen Empire Fur Company, LeVine's, Breitkaupt's, The Famous, B. H. Heller Company, Rosenberg Company.

OWEN AND TIERNEY ARE SURE OF PLACES ON HARVARD ELEVEN

By CHARLES E. PARKER.

It is a day of football judgment at Harvard. Nearly one hundred candidates for the sixty places in the sun on the varsity squad are endeavoring to prove that they are rightful heirs to the places they have been temporarily enjoying. With the afternoon concluded, the coaches will hand to Head Coach Bob Fisher a list of the players they believe deserving of further trial, and these men will receive notification at Monday's practice of their good luck.

The policy today will be to get pretty well over with a thirty five minute run and then the squad will be given a brief rest. Then will come a signal drill and a short scrimmage. Tomorrow the squad will be given a long signal drill and a short scrimmage. Then will come a signal drill and a short scrimmage. Then will come a signal drill and a short scrimmage. Then will come a signal drill and a short scrimmage.

Coach Jimmie Knox is in his glory. Now the time has come for him to form the second team, and he cannot get his men together too soon. The footy, or more, black shirted lads will report to Knox on Monday after they have been dropped from the varsity squad. Like Fisher, Jimmie will tell the boys that good work on the second team will mean a return to the varsity and he will point out concrete instances where scrub players later became stars on the regular squad.

Jimmie has secured Al Soley Tay of Jack Rose for Dan Henry Mc and Morgan Brennan to coach the backfield candidates, while Fisher will have his hands full with the linemen. Fisher has directed a better and more harmonious squad than last year at this time, and he should get the credit he should.

Every year there is a big drop in the weight of the candidates between the first week of practice and the last week. Hard work is responsible, much of the fat soon disappearing. The rubber mopper will be busy from now on, and the rubber will be offered a fine opportunity to know just who has put up against.

Jewett Johnson, one of the two letter quarterbacks on the squad, has reappeared. He has been with the team for two years and was one of the players taken on the long hunt to the Pacific coast in 1919. Johnson was plainly off form last year, but experts that he can hand Charley Buell a real argument this Fall for the honor of running the varsity.

George Owen and Charley Torney are here still pressing all Managers Dick Riggs from spot to week to the most likely time to bear from them. Owen is assigned at present to right. He was one of the best all around backs in the country last season and should have an easy time record to show during the next three months.

Rumor is astir about Torney as he intends to shift his fresh to the tackle. There is a vacancy in the wake of Eddie Casey just now and Wally Trench is said to be the next choice. Casey left for weeks vacation. There are a few good prospects for the position but the material may be developed that it can be bolstered up by a strong pair of guards and quick thinking, aggressive center.

The squad had a number of visitors yesterday. Eddie Casey, who leaves Monday to coach at Mount Union College, Alliance, Ohio, paid close attention to the line coaching. Eddie had a successful season last year and aims to do even better.

Harold Dedman the 1914 captain who will probably play the professional game again this fall, was another spectator and the Dave Tod Withington assistant coach at Exeter was also on the outlook for pointers.

Mal Logan who quarterbacked Charley Brickley's crack team in 1914 and who took a half hour with the squad last week at Perry Jenkins's behest, is another of the old years' regulars back working out in the Stadium that lends will be run at the quarterback instead of at halfback.

The linemen worked for more than an hour, dividing their time between the charging machine, medicine ball, duck waddling and sprinting. There were no Man o'-Wars in the bunch; in fact, Trainer Pooch Donovan footed it faster than any of his big chargers.

Ned Mahan after working with the punters taught the backs how to receive low hold to the line, side step and dodge. Mahan had a field day all to himself and nobody made every man miss.

DRAW IN TENNIS SINGLES FOR NATIONAL TITLE PROVES UNEVEN

By WILLIAM TILDEN, 2D.

Copyrighted by Fox Metzger

Manheim Cricket Club Germantown, Pa., Sept. 9.—The climax of the tennis season is at hand and the curtain will drop when the national singles, which start today at the Germantown Cricket Club courts, will have drawn to a conclusion.

One hundred and eight contestants will be entered in the event, which will be the greatest ever held in this country. Many foreign players have been made welcome guests of the Philadelphia Cricket Club, and the leading players of the world will be seen in action.

The draw provides a delightful surprise in the first round, when Norman Brookes, the Australian champion, will meet Richard Norris Williams, 2d, the former Harvard star. Brookes and Williams are the only players who have ever won the national championship twice. Brookes won in 1914 and 1915, while Williams was victorious in 1912 and 1913.

BRAVES AFTER CLEANUP IN REST OF SERIES WITH PHILLIES

A single game at the Wigwam was all that was slated for this p m, and the Braves rose out to try and to make up for all the cruel lickings pulled by the Phillies in the opening game of the series.

Lorraine and other brands of baseball marred the return of the Braves to the Wigwam yesterday. The old story of "how they should have won" can again be retold after their performance in the first game of a double-header at the lowly Phillies' park yesterday. The last game, since it was the last game of baseball on the road that it will be remembered, the 2 to 20 fates who wended their way to the Wigwam yesterday.

The game was lost in the ninth inning when the Phillies took an easy advantage of Big Joe Oeschger's let up and an error by Christenbury. When the smoke had cleared the Braves were trailing on an 8-to-6 score.

The Braves in their eight innings of batting produced at the expense of Jesse Winters seven runs, four of them, but notwithstanding this heavy barrage of safe clouts only six runs had crossed the plate.

* * *

Oeschger, who was on the mound for the Braves, pitched his best brand of baseball for eight innings, allowing the visitors but three scattered singles, in one instance, the fourth inning, he struck out the three batters, who faced him, on nine pitched balls.

* * *

On coming out for the ninth inning with the game safely tucked away he eased up on his speed a bit, and for the first time in the game walked a man. Then Cravath and Wilson each drove eight runs across the plate and the ball game drift away with the smoke of the assaulting guns.

* * *

Christenbury, who up to that time had fielded and batted for 1.000, slipped up on an easy grounder that should have been a soft double play. When he recovered the apple he threw wildly to first. That in a way caused Oeschger's retirement, Joe giving way to McQuillan.

* * *

The fun all started when Miller, first man up, singled to left. Le Bourveau, who had gone in to run for Stock, got to third on Oeschger's long fly to Wilson, scoring Miller. Rousch doubled to left, scoring Le Bourveau and Williams. King hit a wallop, but Cravath, with Griffith stationed, by pantry going to third in the play. Parkinson drew a free ticket.

* * *

The fans yelled for a new pitcher but their cry was unheeded. Peters, who was helped with Joe's shoots all afternoon, pushed a single past third, hereby scoring Wrightstone batted for Winters and J. Smith ran for Peters. He grounded to Christenbury, who had an easy double play but misjudged the ball and after recovering it threw wild to first base, both runners advancing on the error.

* * *

Magee was next in the rubber Magee singled scoring Meusel. Meusel then walked to Cravath. Le Bourveau singled to right, scoring Magee. Cravath stopped at third on Le Bourveau's single. Wilson was trying to steal second when Southworth threw to Christenbury to tag him out.

* * *

Betts and Bruggy took up the burden as battery for Philadelphia in the ninth and the Braves went out fresh with the ginger getting charged for the defeat.

* * *

Barring that one mix-up Christy and Joe Oeschger a perfect day at bat getting four hits each, one of the latter's a home run for a triple. The Braves made fourteen hits in the first game, but all two occasions failed to hit with the bases loaded. Poor judgment and foolish base running cost a point for the hard hitting gang, for Jack Lee Winters Philly twirler was forever in trouble with fielding but fast fielding held off a lopsided score.

* * *

Watson, who buried the second position, was in rare form, allowing the Philly batsmen but seven scattered hits, while his teammates hit the apple for a thirteen to two score, in his nine innings he had little trouble holding down any attempted rally by the visitors.

* * *

In the second one the bats of the Braves were resounding with base smacks in every inning but the fourth and eighth. The third, which netted the Boston clan five runs, caused the retirement of J. Smith who was relieved by Sedgwick. He had two hard innings the fifth and sixth, in which entire locals crossed the plate four times.

RICKARD SAYS WILSON SHOULD BE BARRED FROM RING FOR LIFE

New York, Sept. 9.—"Johnny Wilson is a disgrace to boxing and the Wilson-Downey bout on Labor Day was a disgrace to me. If I had my way I would bar Wilson from the ring for life" said Tex Rickard, who promoted the middleweight championship contest.

Rickard's severe denunciation of the middleweight champion was indorsed by Jim Savage, the heavyweight, who acted as referee for Johnny and his antagonist Bryan Downey Thirty Arms last Monday night.

Savage declared that he would refuse to box with fighters out of the ring as he did with Wilson in the ring.

Both Rickard and Savage testified before the New Jersey Boxing Commission in the hearing against Johnny Wilson on charges that he didn't try his best to put fight his best when in the contest. The hearing was postponed after a short session at Wilson's request. Johnny will appear next week and will be questioned by Major Frank Hague, Wilson's manager, was at the hearing.

Jimmy took quite a panning from Charles Towne and Charles Mosely, two members of the commission who were at the bout. Rickard urged that Wilson's money be ordered held until next winter. Mosely admitted he was afraid to stop the fight through fear of creating a riot among those who had bet on Wilson.

Towne bluntly read the contract between the promoter and the boxer by the terms of which the decision of the referee was bound to be final, and urged a control of fighting for the best efforts that the fight would be stopped unless improvement was shown.

"Who ever threw a champion out of the ring?" asked Savage.

Wilson said: "I fought to the best of my ability. I fought mostly on the defensive because that is my natural style."

Commissioner McNair testified that before the fourth round he heard one of Johnny's handlers advise as follows:

"Go ahead, Johnny, and fight just as you can so you can keep away from his right hand." And before the tenth round "Go and Johnny you've got just three more rounds and the bacon is yours."

"Wilson could have put up an entirely different fight," said Rickard. "If he had cared. This time he thought only of the money, which was considered. I think a man like Wilson should be barred from the ring for life. He is a disgrace to boxing and the man is a disgrace to me."

The fact that neither Rickard nor Savage complied with the terms of the contract, which required action from the referee, if he fails looks like a winning punch for Wilson in the financial bout.

SUICIDE IDENTIFIED AS FORMER RING STAR

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 9.—The body of a man who committed suicide here a week ago has been identified, authorities announced today, as that of "Shadow" Maher, prominent thirty years ago as a lightweight boxer and at one time a contender for the lightweight championship.

BALL FANS PULLING HARD FOR PIRATES TO WIN

There are many persons in and out of baseball who are pulling for Pittsburgh to win the National League championship and who will be disappointed if the Pirates fall after carrying the pace so far. Those who know the career of Barney Dreyfuss in baseball never will begrudge any money he may ever make out of the sport.

Barney was manager of a clothing house in the days when Louisville was in the old twelve-club league and practically all his salary as manager and all his profits went to maintain the club.

Louisville was not then the baseball town it became later, and it was a hard fight to keep the club going.

In addition to that fact the colonel was one of the league wars making the rules. It was that period in fact that made Barney Dreyfuss the great baseball master of baseball today.

He had to learn how to make schedules in self-defence. Now as the czar of all of the National baseball league schedule leaves the rest of the league as far as possible.

Only with any team playing Sunday ball was granted to seven or eight games at home on Sunday. One season the schedule makers did not give Louisville even one Sunday game at home.

Dreyfuss, practically owner of the team, was forced to attend to his other business all week, so he could not see his team play. His only chance to see his own club in action was to run to Cincinnati or Chicago and see it play a Sunday game.

National Barney objected to that sort of schedule making. He made a fight and got himself appointed as a schedule maker, and he has served on the schedule committee ever since.

He devised the schedule, reversible and adaptable, which is used by both the American and National leagues, and which has become well nigh perfect by small corrections due to changing timetables of railroads.

Dreyfuss never has achieved much profit from baseball. He has a heavy load to carry with a tremendously expensive location and costly plant, and victory for his Pirates would be grateful to him.

Dreyfuss is the typical baseball crank. He forgets all about profits and earnings in his desire to make a ball club. He is and has been for years the best posted of all the owners as to players and the greatest discoverer of them all.

In Barney's book in which he keeps the names and records of unknown players he keeps the closest tab on the baseball players of any of the owners and knows more of the youngsters who are likely to come up than anyone in baseball here now.

If you happen to go to Barney with a tale of how you have seen a youngster work in Hickapoo or Lake Chicopee and ask him if he is able to pull out the hook and roll 'em all the Sunday game at home, he will tell you.

He has discovered more good young ball players than any man in the world, with the possible exception of Connie Mack, who specializes in colleges and prep schools.

HOLY CROSS JOKES AT CAVANAUGH'S SCIENCE

Worcester, Sept. 9.—One day behind their rival, Boston College, the Holy Cross football squad, started practice at Alumni field.

Hop Riopel is prominently mentioned for the position of fullback. Wallingford for quarterback and Archie Golembeskie for tackle.

Captain Gulka declared the best centre in the college world, will again be in the middle of things.

Simonitsch, Healy and Young will go on hand next week. Simonitsch is likely to prove a sensation this fall. Healy sends word he has been throwing ice around all summer and is in fine good shape. The great is was right.

There was considerable kidding about the statement of coach Dan Gough of Boston College on Saturday leaving.

BIG GOLFING STARS TO PLAY IN COLUMBUS

Columbus O., Sept. 9.—George Duncan and Abe Mitchell, British professional golf stars, are scheduled to appear here in a foursome September 14, paired against Jim Barnes, New York, and George Sergent, Columbus, at the Columbus Scioto Club.

The Story of an Ambitious Young Sculptor Who Comes to New York to Win His Fortune

THE STORY SO FAR

Owen Storrow, a young, sculptor, comes to New York from Canada to try to perfect himself in his art. From his room in a cheap hotel he sees on a fire-escape a charming girl, barefooted, drying her hair, watching a man fighting with his wife. The girl cries out indignant protest, and the man calls her a name that rouses the fury of Storrow, who does battle and subdues him. He meets the girl, Torrie Throssel, an actress, and it is a case of love at first sight.

IT had been very casually announced, that luncheon at Sherry's. But even before he caught Charlotte's anxious eye he knew that it involved both a challenge and a test. Still again he sensed some silent pleading for a suspension of judgment.

"I'll be very glad to," he said. He forced a smile as he spoke, though it annoyed him unreasonably to notice that the girl across the room was watching him with quick expectancy. And it was long when the trained hand of a polished headwaiter whipped with flash of attention did not escape the older woman, though she misread its meaning.

But it was the [illegible] to [illegible] with a matter-of-factness that was not without its delicately chastening brusquerie.

"None," retorted Storrow, puzzled by the sudden invocatory look from the girl on the far side of the studio.

"Then what clothes do you propose to get in touch with?" asked the older woman with slightly elevated eyebrows.

"None," was Storrow's grim response.

"It won't you rather feel the need of contact with your fellows," pursued Augusta Kirkner, her studied pallor once not touched with triumph, "with other men working along the same lines?"

"It would help, of course," admitted Storrow. It was the anxious eyes across the room and nothing else that prompted him to passiveness. And the girl's infinitely small smile of approval did not escape him.

"Yes, I rather imagine a nice club or two would help" murmured his hostess. A faint trace of color had crept into her finely wrinkled cheek, and Storrow knew, as he watched her over-dignified retreat, that he had exasperated her. He was more disturbed, however, by Charlotte's hand-clasp and her whispered words of "Don't mind" as she smiled her fallacious-ly light good bye to him. Still again her face took on its coloring of delicate shell-pink and still again she professed some silent message to spell.

He realized more poignantly than ever, when he was alone, that a secret had in some way been established between them. Their partnership in that silent understanding seemed to link them into something closer than casual acquaintanceship. But the thought of it touched him no more profoundly than sun-glow at a city street-end touches a hungry and harried stock broker.

CHAPTER V.

STORROW had thought the thing over well. He nursed no illusions as to the [illegible] as to [illegible] before him. He foresaw the inevitable. He knew that he and the Kirkner house were destined to [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

FINANCE AND BUSINESS

By B. C. FORBES.

Judge Gary is on his way to Mexico. President Mitchell of the National City Bank is nearing Europe. Robert Dollar, the business giant of San Francisco, has been visiting China. Thomas W. Lamont, of J. P. Morgan & Company, not so long ago returned from a business tour in the Orient. Samuel H. Vauclain of Baldwin Locomotive recently brought back in his pocket orders from Europe. Walter C. Teagle, president of the Standard Oil, and Edward L. Doheny, of Mexican Petroleum, have been conferring with President Obregon in Mexico City. Minor C. Keith, of United Fruit, practically rules Central America. Frank A. Vanderlip is at present investigating conditions in Europe. John H. Patterson of the National Cash Register Company recently spent many busy weeks on the other side of the Atlantic. President Prosser of the Bankers' Trust Company personally looked over the ground in Paris before the recent opening of a branch there.

What does all this mean?

* * *

The public have a notion that wealthy financial and business magnates have a delightfully easy life, that they can go where they please, when they please, and do what they like as long as their fancy suggests.

The truth is that the majority of men who have attained conspicuous success have been slaves to their business far more than a workman is a slave to his job. Even the leadership in almost every field has involved a great deal of travel, often by sea as well as by land. The heads of gigantic enterprises can count upon being able to spend all of their time in comfort at home among their families. Most of them never know the moment that a telephone or a telegraph call may not follow them to pack their grip hurriedly and hasten to catch train or steamship to carry them far from home.

* * *

One characteristic of most men who have accomplished big things in the world is that they make a point of gathering information at first hand whenever it is possible to do so, no matter how great or unpleasant the trouble involved. They want to see things with their own eyes. They want to size up situations and propositions for themselves. They are never satisfied with second hand knowledge if they can procure first hand knowledge. Physical discomfort is not allowed to influence their search for facts.

* * *

For example, Charles E. Mitchell some time ago told me that he hoped to be able to arrange his affairs so that he could run across to Europe because, as he said, "There are several things I want to find out for myself on the spot." If you were to inquire at Judge Gary's office you would be assured that his trip to Mexico is purely one of pleasure, recreation, of rest. But you can depend upon it that the head of the U. S. Steel Corporation will keep his eyes and his ears wide open regarding where he goes in Mexico, and that when he returns he will be able to lay before his directors and associates a lot of valuable information concerning the prospects of resuming business with Mexico on a large scale.

* * *

Few vast organizations can be run successfully from a swivel chair in an office in New York, Chicago, Detroit, Boston, San Francisco, St. Louis, Pittsburgh or Philadelphia. The late J. P. Morgan moved about a great deal. E. H. Harriman and James J. Hill were constantly hurrying from one point to another to find out for themselves how things were going throughout their vast railroad systems. Charles B. Seger frequently tours the two-score factories comprising the U. S. Rubber Company, of which he is chairman and president. Robert Dollar's business journeyings have equalled once around the earth every year for the last forty years; the only time that when any questions arise as to the quality of a huge pile of lumber, he finds out the facts for himself by nimbly climbing to the top, notwithstanding that he is approaching eighty years of age.

One of the most notable men in the automobile industry, the man who designed the first Ford motor car and every subsequent Ford car for twenty years, very frequently used the habit of traveling hither and thither to find out things for himself. W. C. Durant, Willys and of Willis-St. Claire) was an apprentice draftsman at only a few dollars a week; he continued to be a hundred dollars or more every year to "invest" in travel during his vacation. Evidently, when he did not take him to Atlantic City or Broadway or other famous haunts of pleasure.

His utilized every hour of his annual vacation in visiting and inspecting the many notable engineering and industrial plants in the country, such as Baldwin and Westinghouse. Incidentally, when he did not take him to Atlantic City or Broadway or other famous haunts of pleasure.

* * *

"Home-keeping youth have ever homely wits." Shakespeare observed. The topmost rung of the ladder of success is usually reached by those who love their ease and comfort so much that they will not undergo the hardships and discomfort of much travel for the purpose of gathering facts helpful for forming sound judgments.

* * *

It is my observation that most self-made men have had to practice self-denial and self-sacrifice very rigidly at least in the first half of their careers. Renting rule may be very comfortable, but they don't lead anywhere worth reaching. Big men resist the temptation to slip lazily into them.

Stocks Rally in New York; Call Money Opens at 5%; Market Remains Quiet

GAINS THE RULE AT END OF MORNING

Coppers, Motors, Oils and Equipments Up; Rails and Steels Steady

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor.

Stocks rallied on the New York Exchange during the second hour, and by noon the market was rather strong. Coppers, motors, oils and equipments were up and rails and steels steady. But trading was of moderate volume, the hour transactions approaching 120,000 shares. American Locomotive advanced nearly three points and other strong issues were Baldwin, Car & Foundry, Utah Copper, Inspiration, Chino, Anaconda, American Smelting, United Drug and Retail Stores. They gained a point or more. National Cloak & Suit was a weak spot, declining 5% on two transactions.

Call loans renewed at 6 per cent. Demand sterling was under contract at $3.72¾, at the opening and other foreign exchange quotations as follows: French, .0742; Belgian, .0603; lire, .0432. off .0005; marks, .0103⅝, up .0001¼.

HAD A MIXED START.

The price movement was mixed at the opening and the early trend downward. Within half an hour the list looked weak, but it rallied slowly and in the irregular appearance at the beginning of the second hour. Fluctuations averaged small and trading was dull the with hesitancy. Mexican Petroleum was active and was upon bullish rumors of loan, coin is general following its lead. Mails were steady as a class, but Northern issues dropped more than a point. There is considerable uncertainty as to what action the Government will take regarding the dividend. Crucible was the weakest steel. Tobacco issues all showed lower. Sugars receding the most. Sugars were down from the outset, American sugar falling further. Baldwin failed to retain an opening gain and eased off a fraction. Pullman was fractionally lower. They want to size up situations and propositions for themselves. They are never satisfied with second hand knowledge if they can procure first hand knowledge. Physical discomfort is not allowed to influence their search for facts.

TRADING WAS QUIET.

Trading was quiet during the forenoon. Covering of shorts has diminished, but no has short selling. The morning demand for stocks after the close yesterday was much less than usual. Regarding the course of this market, it was stated this morning:

"Brokers who make a specialty of lending stocks stated that there have been enormous returns of borrowed stocks, especially in issues like Mexican Petroleum, Baldwin Locomotive, Crucible Steel and Sears-Roebuck, and last night only two stocks stood at a premium, Sears-Roebuck and American Sugar lending at 1-32. A large number of stocks, however, loaned flat, among them being Cruciblle Steel, Goodrich, Atlantic Gulf & West Indies and American Sumatra Tobacco."

JOBS BEGGING FOR MEN IN WINNIPEG

Spillane Finds No Unemployment Over Border, But Fears For After Harvest

By RICHARD SPILLANE.

Winnipeg, Sept. 9.—There is no unemployment in Winnipeg. So declares Grover Edward Varnell, Mayor. In fact there are more jobs than men. In proof of this he read telegrams from General Manager Murphy of the Canadian Pacific asking for 500 track men at 35 cents an hour, and General Manager Warren of the Canadian National saying he could use 400 to 600 at the same rate, and also required machinists and boilermakers.

All the Mayor could supply was five men.

And yet the Dominion and Provincial authorities and the municipalities expect considerable unemployment this Winter and are to meet to discuss methods of relieving possible distress.

AFTER THE HARVEST.

The explanation is that harvesting the crops takes up the labor slack today but in other lines, lumber and general industry at very low production there is no likelihood of work for all who return from the agricultural districts to the cities.

Manitoba has a good wheat crop, well above the average in size and of fine quality. Beef prices are poor and high freight rates aggravate the situation. The Bankers' Association has taken action on the cattle matter by issuing instructions to extend generous credit to stock raisers where they have anything approaching reasonable security. There also has been some modification of railroad rates on cattle.

While western Canada gave promise a month ago of remarkable grain yields this has changed considerably by extensive hail storms. The damage was not so great as reported at first and fair returns are certain from nearly all sections except the dry districts of southern Alberta and southern Saskatchewan.

EAST MEETS WEST.

Winnipeg is a great town. There the East ends and the West begins. The produce of a farm belt that stretches 1,000 miles west pours through Winnipeg and the supplies for a vast farm region are purchased in Winnipeg.

The city has been through various booms and later depressions; has had its share of ups and downs, but is a hustling, bustling place today, part Eastern and part Western, but wholly Canadian. It does a big business but is poorly balanced. It has the tremendous asset in possible low power of hydro-electric energy on the Winnipeg River at distances varying from five to 100 miles. Within five miles from the city, yet it has comparatively few manufacturing plants of size.

The city has a power plant of 47,000 horsepower on the Winnipeg River. The Railway has a 37,000 horsepower plant. They sell power to consumers at varying prices. In some instances comparatively large consumers get power at the almost unbelievably low rate of one-half cent per kilowatt hour.

The city sells power to nearly 48,000 consumers and in many houses it is used for light, for cooking, heating, etc.

This municipal enterprise has been a fish financial success.

MANY BIG INDUSTRIES.

Of industries flour and grist mill products are by far the largest. Next comes slaughtering and meat packing. Agricultural products, lumber and foundry and machine shops. There is only one tannery and one dye house. There is a big jobbing traffic in cattle. The Union Stock Yards are the largest in Canada, have a capacity for 10,000 cattle, 6,000 hogs and 4,000 sheep a day.

The city owns its waterworks utilities its water power fully it is certain to be a big manufacturing center. Its government is of the usual commission form of the city of Western Canada.

What it is going to do about the tariff, it protests against some of the forms under which it is compelled to pay, and it has a number of times complaint of the banking system. The banks of Winnipeg say the banks of Western Canada are managed by men sent from the East who have no direct interest in the country and who look forward to promotions that will take them back East.

WANT BANKS OF THEIR OWN.

The real management of the banks, they declare, is removed from the regions served. They want Manitoba banks for Manitoba, they want banks of their own. At present they say they are not in position to furnish them. They say the American system is much better. They would like country banks such as dot our country for men about the soil. They are not satisfied either with the Ottawa government.

They predict a big agricultural majority or, at least, agricultural control of the next Parliament.

PAYS TO TRUST UNCLE SAM, SAYS EVANS

Expert Points Out Some of the Best Current Stocks Upon Which to Base Speculation

By C. B. EVANS.

Chicago, Sept. 9.—In the past two years the people have grown exceedingly weary of threats to issue good dollars into the hopper and having them come out of the mill as four mash; hence extraordinary satisfaction in a moderate turn in the aspect of the stock list. So think have they grown that they sell their holdings on an advance of a few points.

This may be good policy from a speculative viewpoint, but as to many sound issues the greater profit is to be had by carrying holdings a much longer period. The progressive man in addition to a good interest income meanwhile there will be a higher selling price.

PAYS TO TRUST U. S.

The comparatively short duration of adverse times and declining prices does not obliterate the principle that it pays to trust Uncle Sam in the end. Probably the best stocks on which to base one's plans are those a little lower than the high levels of up and down caused by a mere speculative transaction.

A dozen issues on the Chicago list could be named in this category. Dissolution Match, a relative, has just celebrated the change in the spirits of traders by a jump from 69¾ to 107. Last year that stock sold down to 30 and did not rise at all above 102¾ and thus far this year its transactions in it are a little over 3,000 shares.

American Radiator, some of the packing stocks, certain of the Insull issues, at least one of the less known agricultural implement companies, Inland Steel, probably Quaker Oats and perhaps Union Carbide and Carbon may be mentioned as inviting. As to International Harvester, its stock of preferred solid tractors and other machines is said by good authorities to have been overstated. It is a fair surmise that considerable sales of these machines have been made recently. Even though International Transportation may merit attention, although the enemies of that class of property are numerous and at times very troublesome, and People's Gas has a management and a support of the highest quality.

MAYE GREAT SURPLUSES.

Of all these companies it may be said that net earnings are not nil, or any or indifferent, but for all that they have surpluses like so many great blue grass. Generally they are people are finding out what there is underneath these concerns, and the tremendous asset in possession to the better class of corporations all over the country.

That the earnings of a corporation take a vacation in mid-Summer is no sign that they are not going on about their business under more stimulating conditions. The conviction is becoming general that the downspout of zero dividends has gone by.

Shipments Exceed Production

During May, June and July of this year 5,646,000 barrels of Portland cement, while the shipments totalled 6,501,000. The country's output has grown from 100,000 barrels in 1900 to 100,362,909 in 1920. Prices averaged $2.51 per barrel at the mills last year.

Wall Street Briefs

According to a director of the Baldwin Locomotive Works, the company will obtain $2,000,000 for its new plant. The first unit of 10 shops is announced by Dillon, Read & Co. that they have been asked to take the $10,000,000 offering of Fisk Rubber Company 1st closed mortgage 20-year 8 per cent sinking fund bonds.

Some plant production has been cut by the Firestone Tire & Rubber Company from 25,000 to 15,000 tires a day.

NEWS AND HAPPENINGS IN THE WORLD OF MOTION PICTURES

By FRIEDA DAVIS.

THE order of the day in Hollywood film circles now is for swimming parties. Count that day as lost when some one of the celebrities doesn't send out a call to assemble at his—or her—swimming pool.

Viola Dana has been doing extensive entertaining back of her new home in the pool that is her greatest pride. Mr. and Mrs. Buster Keaton are seen there almost daily, while the comedian and Miss Dana stage comedy stunts that would make anyone's fortune if aguinly screened.

Wallace Reid has a particularly effective pool at his hillside home and has a very special and pile built there for young Bill Reid. Whenever Wallace isn't at work on a Lasky set he joins his wife, Dorothy Davenport, "in the swim." Mrs. Reid spends, according to report, fully eight hours out of each twenty-four learning how deft speaking.

WANDA HAWLEY MOVES

Wanda Hawley, who has moved into a new home out near the Reid's, drops in after her work at the Realart studio, and is usually joined by Mabel Normand, whose "comeback" has startled the entire colony. A year ago Miss Normand was but a shadow of her old self. She had lost in weight as well as in "pep." After a six months' rest in the New England hills she has come back to Los Angeles and the Sennett field her old self.

Others who splash in the Reid pool are T. Roy Barnes and his wife, Jessie Crawford's family, E. Hart and the two Novaks, Jane and Eva. William Wallace Reid, jr., better known as "BILL," has learned at the age of four to swim under water like a young goldfish. The minute he gets his nose above water, though, he is lost until his father comes out to rescue him.

Charles Ray is another who has had a gorgeous swimming pool built on his place. It was especially designed and has a Japanese tea garden at one end and green tile dressing rooms at the other. The pool itself is entirely lined with green tile.

WORD FROM LON CHANEY

THE statement spread broadcast through the East that Lon Chaney has been signed as a star for Universal has roused that actor to "take his pen in hand" and indignantly deny the report.

He has not, he states, signed for more than one production. When he finishes that one, he is scheduled to start right in on a picture for someone else. Stardom, it seems, holds no interest for Chaney. Several of the better known players are playing independently with any company that happens to need their services. When one has the standing of Chaney, one shies at a long-term contract.

SHANNON DAY STARTS SOMETHING

WHEN Samuel Goldwyn "persuaded Shannon Day to leave Ziegfeld and his famous "Follies" for Culver City, he didn't know what he was doing to the efficiency of his working force.

Miss Day was given a prominent role in "His Back Against the Wall," featuring Raymond Hatton. Everything went according to Hoyle when suddenly a jazz orchestra started up within hearing of the set. Miss Day's forte in the "Follies" was jazz. In the midst of a scene she decided that her feet simply couldn't behave any longer and she started an impromptu entertainment that brought players, directors, camera-men, and "props" running to her particular section of the studio.

CAMERA CLICKS

EDITH ROBERTS is another player to be "borrowed" by Cecil DeMille for his next feature. Since she has been starred by Universal this actress has been watched by the film producers. She is more than glad, however, to allow herself as a mere member of the cast under the famous "C. B." To be in a DeMille picture seems to equal honor to all the players. Leatrice Joy has also been "borrowed" for the same production.

PATHE has bought another French motion picture. This time it is the screen version of De Maupassant's "The Orderly." The cast or director has not been announced.

De Valera Is Right, Says Noted English Journal

We have just received our copy of the London Nation, one of the most independent and intellectual publications in the old English speaking world. It is almost entirely devoted to the discussion of the negotiations between Mr. Lloyd George and Mr. De Valera concerning the settlement of the Irish question. It sums up an analysis of the situation very fairly for an English newspaper.

It confesses that Mr. De Valera is right when he declares that the offer made by Mr. Lloyd George does not grant a dominion status. It declared that the presence that Ireland is offered a dominion status weakens the British position because it angers the Irish and awakens their suspicion that England after all is preparing to practice her old deception. It criticises General Smuts' letter for declaring that the offer is dominion status and accounts for Smuts' mistake by pointing out that the Smuts' letter was dated August 4, and Mr. Lloyd George made public the offer some time later.

The Nation suspects that the Tories in the Cabinet forced Lloyd George to change the offer after Smuts had written his letter.

The Nation proceeds to point out that De Valera's position is perfect, and continues:

"It is Ulster which stands outside refusing to advance on the partition act, and entrenching herself there. De Valera has himself made Ulster a tender of great significance. He has offered to consider an entry into the 'Commonwealth Group,' if Ulster will negotiate with him on the basis of Irish unity. This is a fact of capital importance which indicates that Sinn Fein is not intransigeant, but Ulster may be."

We must keep in mind that this British newspaper does not want Ireland to go out of the British Empire.

While we hold that Ireland has a right to leave the British Empire if it chooses and that British misconduct in Ireland has given her that right within a few years if she never had it before, yet we can understand the feeling of an Englishman about losing another pillar in his imperial structure. But we cannot understand how the Englishman, if he hates the thought of separation from Ireland, can allow the insignificant minority in Ulster, acting contrary to its own best interests and under the false, deceiving leadership of a few big business interests, to keep a gaping wound right in England's side year after year which jeopardizes the whole empire. Every intelligent Englishman knows that the average man in Ulster has no real quarrel with the majority in the rest of Ireland, that his interests lie entirely with the united Ireland, just exactly as the ordinary non-slave holding Southerner had no interest whatever in secession and every interest in the world in maintaining the Union. But these unfortunate and unintelligent common people in Ulster are deceived by the false propaganda of the Irish Ulsterite landlords and big manufacturers.

The whole trouble is that the ruling class in Ulster and the ruling class in England are one, and it is willing to sacrifice England, the empire and everything else to serve its own interests. What the Liberal and Labor party in England and Scotland need is a little courage.

The cowardice of the Asquith administration in 1914 is responsible for this whole otoody and disgraceful mess. In the meantime, Mr. De Valera and the Irish Republican Parliament and the Irish Republican Army come off with all the honors.

Decline and Resurrection of New England

The publication of the amount in income taxes paid to the national government last year from the different States of the Union, reveals the fact that Massachusetts no longer contains the largest number of those whose incomes are considerable. In those observations we always leave out New York, because New York attracts rather than creates its large incomes.

The States which have overtaken Massachusetts in the race for wealth are those Middle Western States, whither New England's poor and costly railroad service has driven the great automobile and other allied industries.

It was only a few years ago that New England, and Massachusetts especially, had a chance to be the home of the huge automobile plants. But the dominating influence which the New England railroads, owned in Massachusetts, but controlled in New York, exercised over our business organizations and politicians, made us lose the splendid opportunity.

The geographical position of New England puts us at the mercy of the railroads so long as they are under private management and owned in New England and controlled in New York. Our rocky, sterile soil has always made us dependent upon industry rather than upon agriculture, and industry always depends greatly upon railroad rates and service. The remoteness of our location in the far northeast corner of the country, more remote from the centre of population even than the largest cities of Canada, makes railroad rates and service not only important but absolutely vital.

Now New England's favorite party is again in power and is making a new tariff. That new tariff is unfavorable to New England and favorable to the West. The Western members tell us that the ghost of New England's "Schedule K" will not down and that the party must not be wrecked again by another Payne-Aldrich bill. But that is the excuse, not the reason. The West has wrested leadership from us in all matters in which the entire financial interests of the country are not behind New England.

The reason is that the Middle West naturally pursues its own interests and those interests have clashed with the interests of New England.

This is nothing new, because it is human, but in times gone by the superior adoitness and experience of the political leaders of the New England community succeeded in winning the tariff contest for New England. Yet the price New England paid for victory was costly and spelled defeat in the end. That price was the permission that New England gave to her own political leaders to exchange their security in office for their acquiescence in the withdrawal of control of New England transportation interests, like the railroads from New England, where they were owned, to New York, where they were managed and exploited at the expense of New England.

Our Senators and occasionally a powerful Representative, like Tom Reed or Nelson Dingley, contented themselves with representing the passing interests of our local manufacturers, and bought the support or the acquiescence in their political successes of the railroads, the most powerful of all our corporations in politics, by acquiescing in the exploitation of New England by the railroads and in the reduction of New England to a mere province of the financial centres outside of New England.

What is the remedy? Greater confidence in themselves by New England business men—less standing in awe of a Wall street Poo Bah or his local satrap, government operation of the railroads with a reasonable and secure return on their railroad holdings by New England people.

These are among the remedies.

AGED POOR TREATED LIKE CRIMINALS

Nellie Bly Tells of Terrible Suffering Homeless Old People Must Endure---Letter From Woman Who Begs Shelter for Week

By Nellie Bly

Do you know that it is a crime to grow old, poor and homeless?

It isn't labeled crime in the statutes, but such cases are treated exactly like criminal offences.

Without any fault of their own, victims of fate, the old who become dependent, are committed to institutions—in some unfortunate they live the life of prisoners. They must endure the aching, monotonous grind of rules and manners which suck and drive away every vestige of humanity in person. They have the bed and limestone floor to rest on, to eat, to work outside in snow-shoveling nice, to sit in long lines upon the benches, to endure their dull companions, to do such menial work as can be put upon them, and to go to bed at the regulation hour, in the long, noiseless dormitories, where there is neither privacy for prayer nor rest for misery.

Stripped of individuality, deprived of liberty, compelled to a fixed routine, the pitiable aged, homeless one, most miserable of all unkind creatures exist in sadness and despair the end of their life sentences.

Death Only Hope

For it is a sentence for life, no less merciful than the sentence given a murderer. They are sometimes, unable to support themselves, they are old, and consequently they are sentenced to some institution until death shall release them.

Isn't it barbarous? Isn't it unfeeling? Isn't it criminal? Can any imagine that such things could be permitted in this age of advancement? How the world would howl and protest and weep if humorous or guilty young persons would receive life sentences to such institutions. If such a thing should occur, driven would be formed for their benefit, and societies would spring into existence to work for their release. But because they are aged and helpless, no one seems to care.

Can you picture yourself, if through misfortune quite beyond your control, all your friends and belongings should be taken away from you, and you should become old and unable to support yourself. If death does not take you in your youth, age is inevitable and misfortune happens more often to the aged than good luck. Can you look forward to such an end to your life?

Yet within the walls of institutions are human beings just as refined as you are, fully as sensitive to surroundings, just as delicate in their likes and dislikes. Imagine them, their torture of mind and body, the hell of the surroundings to which they are condemned so long as life shall last.

Are you then surprised when you read in the daily press that a woman of seventy puts a gas tube in her mouth and dies or that a man of eighty hangs himself or jumps into the river? Or that an old couple who had lived in love and harmony together for thirty, forty or even fifty years, had together committed suicide in some miserable room for which they could not pay?

Death is always preferable for the old to the living death in an institution.

What would you do if you were the woman whose letter is given below? She hasn't given me her name, and being homeless, she can't give me her address. So I have no way of reaching her, and possibly extending to her a little comfort and aid. But read her letter, written with a splendid, cultivated hand.

Imagine yourself in her condition. It's not impossible. Anything can happen in this world. The uncertainty of fate has been shockingly proved to all of us by the murder of the Czar and the descent to poverty and starvation of noble Russian families who had for a thousand years lived in luxury and affluence. We have even had many instances in America where the last members of wealthy families have died in poverty and want. What has happened to them can happen to you and me.

Do we want to take the risk of criminals, and like criminals being sent to institutions like forced to live our last days until death ends our misery? Or do we want now to see that these methods of treating the old are changed and altered? It can be done. It only needs a sufficient number of people to get together to put an end to these barbarous methods.

Here is the letter referred to above:

Homeless Woman's Letter

"Miss Nellie Bly—I lost a fairly good position because I would not hear of America being insulted. I tried to protect my own land against the bitter hatred of an alien. And I have been compelled to suffer because of it.

"How glad one ought to be to have money enough to buy the American to read Mr. Brisbane's beautiful editorials, so instructive, and your Wonderful articles, so full of heartfelt sympathy, so deeply interesting and written by a true American. The Americans are very dear to me.

"Miss Bly, if you hear of a stewardess being needed on an American ship, if you get the opportunity, please think of me. Ingratitude is not a weakness of mine. I have been angry to think any one man or woman would be so mean as to forget how kind you have been to them.

"I am forty-eight years of age, but no doubt look much older, because of illness and worry.

"My eyes are sore from want of sleep. I have no home, no shelter from the weather, no place to sleep.

"Through no fault of my own, I am now in a sad plight. I will not go to an institution, and cannot beg for aid. I am not a beggar or a parasite. No true American would beg for help when able to work. I am still able to work if I could find it.

"Homeless women especially, need shelter between 11:30 and 6 a. m.

"Those are the only hours I dread in my homelessness.

"I am perfectly respectable, and have no vicious habits. If it rains tonight I shall have to be out in it. A woman told me of a free shelter, but it is filled with vermin. Always had a roof over my head until lately. Some have mentioned 'charities' to me, but I will have none of them. Don't want charity by which one is humiliated and hurt and treated like a criminal.

"Crave sleep so much; expect to be ordered out of this place (the letter was written on a hotel note paper) although it is still early, 8 p. m. You would be surprised how petty some people can be if one's clothing is not as fresh as theirs.

"My black skirt and waist and shoes seem to impress them with disfavor. Especially my white hair, which is more from worry than age. Have not courage to ask people to give me a room. Do you know anyone who would let me have just room and shelter until I get money to pay for it? Will keep it nice and clean while I stay in it. WILL SURELY REPAY.

"Please do not think unkindly of me for writing and asking such a favor, but as it gets on toward dark one must think of the terrible night in the street. Please just advise me, for you have a good brain and I have not.

"Please advise me how to get just one room for a week at least. Want to work for it and well able to do so after I have had some rest.

"Yours respectfully,

"T. M. R."

I am sure there are plenty of people who would give "T. M. R." shelter and even work if she would send her name and tell where she could be found. Or she can come to see me. I shall not send her to the institutions, which I abhor, but shall do all in my power to find some way to help her out of her distress.

Who else wants to help? Providing, of course, that I find her.

CONSIDER YOUR PASSENGERS

Mr. Car Driver, think of the persons in the rear seat.

Those in the back seat are subjected to the most discomfiture when the machine passes rapidly over bumps.

The fact that you are in front and have your mind occupied and have something to which to hold yourself should not make you forget those who are riding behind.

You are not doing a favor to those who sit back of you, who are supposed to be your guests, since you are driving, if you go at such a reckless speed that they fear that some accident may occur at any moment.

Operate your car at a speed which enables your guests to see some of the section through which they pass.

By driving fast you only frighten those who are not used to a car and they become so nervous from looking ahead to see what next may be encountered that they have no time to look around and enjoy the beautiful scenery.

READ THOSE SIGNS AND ESCAPE PERIL

By Dr. Charles Fleischer

WATCH your step—and save the company a suit for damages, and yourself Lord knows what!

The Electric Railway Company is not concerned for your immortal soul, when it placards its cars and platforms with the warning: Watch Your Step!

Not to accuse this corporation—or any other—of soullessness, its concern is that you shall not, by a misstep, step out of this life, to continue your quest of immortality in another.

Those placards—and similar ones, bidding you seek Safety First and Always, or to Stop, Look and Listen—are canny expressions of corporate enlightened self-interest.

One for you and two for them!

However, we shall not be cynical or ungrateful, for we need even such interested assistance, in these days of swift locomotion, which have added so much menace to life as to keep our instinct of self-preservation working overtime.

Indeed, we are grateful for having our lives saved. More than that we can even appreciate these matter-of-fact products of our rushing civilization as moral measures to aid us in living the life of the spirit.

Read the Signs

To be sure, we still have our religions and our Bibles and various books of ethical guidance. But who will undertake to estimate the far-reaching potential spiritual helpfulness of these familiar signs?

As you travel—by foot or automobile or trolley or train—why not get the habit of reading those signs and reaping double benefit of safety for your body and salvation for your soul?

Perhaps you are one of many millions who never go into a church and never read the Scriptures, ancient or modern. It may be that you even think it a weakness to absorb a book which would do you some good—because it is more than mere entertainment.

Well, friend heathen, it won't hurt you, then, to join the vast army of those who believe in signs, and in reading them as you run along, on pleasure or on business bent.

Here's a promise that hereafter, when you read those public preachments, you will get more good out of them than you used to. By unconscious association of ideas, you will always relate them to this suggestion!

One of our sensitive American poets has sung that flowers speak to us, if we will hear. Perhaps, a bit more prosily, we may say that advertisements will preach to us, if we read them with a really seeing eye.

Probably, you have noticed, incidentally, the high moral tone which much of our publicity assumes. If not, then give yourself the interesting habit of reading the advertising columns of the newspapers and the magazines.

Aid Education

Along with such public placards as have been mentioned, these also are doing their share towards the moral education of the American people.

It certainly is not helpful advice to be told to Watch Your Step. A bit calculating, perhaps, and somewhat in the spirit of If-you-cannot-be-good-be-careful! However, it is a useful warning to any one of us to make sure where we are going before we go ahead.

A moral teaching akin to that is in the friendly sign which bids us Seek Safety First and Always. That is also a sort of prudential morality, but, if observed, would surely prevent many a youthful and maturer error, with its sad and certain consequences.

Of similarly canny character is the injunction to Stop, Look and Listen! It is a necessary warning for us, because we are such a painfully young people inclined to rush ahead, and are forged to pay for speed with regrets; as do all whose hindsight is better than their foresight.

Perhaps the nature of these signs is an index to the present phase in the life of our nation, intensely practical, even in our idealism.

Doubtless, as America grows older, we shall learn to "soar."

We gave aviation to the world. Next, we shall fit wings to democracy and make that the means of mankind's further Godward flight!

A WASTE OF TIME

A member of Congress has introduced a bill providing for the coinage of a 2½ cent piece, and our neighbor's estimable wife wants to know why it is necessary to go to any such trouble, seeing that [illegible] worth only two and a half cents now.

COULD NOT ESCAPE RUSSIAN REVOLT

By Joseph Irwin France

United States Senator from Maryland

(From the Senator's diary kept while in Moscow.)

(Copyright, 1921, by the Baltimore Sun.)

MOSCOW, July 6 (By Mail).—The Russian revolution was inevitable and rational. It was political, social, economic. The economic system of Russia was, more than political, impossible. It was so hopeless that it could not be reformed. It had to be destroyed. When the revolution started it had to go on until it was complete and until all there was of the old economic structure was gone.

In America it was thought that the revolutionists destroyed the banks by robbing and looting. The revolution by its rational and inevitable processes destroyed the banks. This is how it happened.

The old government could not function and it fell. A group of conservative men took charge, as a temporary and provisional government, and it was thought that they could carry out the government policies with reference to the war and that a stable government could be evolved. But the disease of Russia was too deep for a moderate remedy.

Following the abdication of the Czar came the economic revolution, for the peasants began to ask what disposition would be made of the crown lands and of the vast estates held by the nobility as gifts from the Czar and the past despotic rulers of Russia.

There were in Russia, broadly speaking, two classes, those who owned the land of Russia, to the number of about 200,000 of nobility, and the millions of peasants who tilled this land. When the question of the disposition of these vast estates of nobles and of Czar arose, there was but one logical answer. It might indeed have been given by Americans, Englishmen or Germans, by fair-minded men of all nations.

Huge Estates Divided

These huge estates, some of them running hundreds of thousands of acres, had to be confiscated and divided among the peasants, the descendants of men and women who for generations had tilled these lands without reward except a bare subsistence and sometimes even this had to be sought outside. The rent and the taxes on the peasant farmstead sometimes amounted to 125 per cent. of the whole crop. In other words, the peasant then was forced to go to the city in the Winter to earn his subsistence and the additional rent and tax to keep his little home. The only possible answer to the question of the disposition of these lands was that they must be divided.

But when confiscation begins where shall it end? The workers in the cities, learning that the vast country estates of these nobles were to be divided, began to ask if they must live in hovels or two or three families in a single room while the city palaces from which these same nobles had fled, lands remained unoccupied. If the country estates of this small privileged class in pre-war Russia were to be divided, why not the city property? By an unanswerable logic and an irresistible process it was done.

General Insolvency

It was this wholesale confiscation of property which automatically destroyed the banks, the ultimate credit and solvency of which rests in the ownership of land. With the insolvency of all the banks came the insolvency of all the merchants and the people who had money in the banks or invested in securities based on credits of land. Thus it ran on until there was no more title to property or solvency anywhere in Russia, except that quickly acquired solvency of the peasant who demanded his land when no man or men or government could be strong enough to deny.

War's the process moral? It was inevitable. Those who would defend the old system can with clear conscience condemn the new condition. Those who are only prepared to defend the old order must recognize that the present condition was inevitable.

There was no middle ground. Either the old must remain or this new must come.

The condition of Russia today must not be blamed on the revolution. This statement will bear constant repetition. Russia was exhausted and demoralized in 1916. Then came another year of war, revolution, the blockade by the powers, and while being strangled by this blockade, under great leadership, Russia rallied, mobilized armies, armed herself and fought against invading enemies on the east, south, west and north.

In a few months of peace and with no help even against the suspicion and stubborn opposition of a world, these men, working devotedly and intelligently, have accomplished much for the rebuilding of this great nation.
